Like many other Ohio communities, Mansfield today was getting slight relief from the heat wave and forecasts indicated that the state was due for a recession in the hot spell.

The "mass of cool air" promised for the past week was still on its way today. This time it is supposed to be moving southward from Canada and into the Ohio valley.

Cooling breezes blew over the city at mid-day, and though the temperature reading at noon today was 89, the same as at the same time yesterday, the heat did not seem quite so intense. The forecast said tonight and tomorrow would not be so warm.

But in the meantime, the sun continued to wilt vegetation and brought new deaths from the heat and drownings

Yesterday Mansfield literally panted under a 94 maximum temperature. A drop to 69 during the night brought some short-lived respite The average for the 24-hour period was 81.5, which was about nine degrees warmer than the normal average of 72.2.

At noon today the temperature was 88.

Thundershowers were forecast for tonight and tomorrow

SIX BANDITS GET $108,000 IN BANK LOOT

Seize Money Pouch From Two Messengers at Asbury, N. J. Post Office.

MADE FAST ESCAPE

Robbery Happened Quickly, Witnesses Unaware of Anything Wrong.

(By United Press)

ASBURY PARK, N. J.—Six bandits seized a pouch containing $108.000 in cash from two messengers of the Asbury Park Trust company today as the messengers were about to enter the Asbury Park postoffice.

The money was being sent by the bank to the Federal Reserve Bank in New York.

The messengers carried the cash in a large leather bag from the bank only three blocks from the postoffice. They were about to enter the post office, in the middle of the business district, when three men, carrying sawed-off shotguns, stepped up to them and demanded the bag.

The bandits seized the pouch ran across the street to a parked sedan and fled. The automobile bore Pennsylvania license plates.

The messengers told police they believed two or three other men were in the car

The sedan went north toward Allenhurst.

Witnesses said the robbery was completed so rapidly they did not know what was taking place until the car roared up the street.

The messengers described the bandits as between 30 and 35 years old, of dark complexion and well-dressed. They were not masked.

Police said the money was wrapped in packages of several thousands of dollars each They could not give the denominations of the bills.

Expansion of Economic War Being Planned

Britain Would Cooperate With U. S. In Solving Problem of World Surplus; Navicert System Extended to All Ships Europe-Bound

(By United Press)

LONDON — Drastic tightening of the British blockade of Germany and Italy was announced by Hugh Dalton, minister of economic warfare, today in the house of commons.

Dalton, who also told commons that Britain had offered to co-operate with the United States in solving the problem of world surpluses, said the blockade would be extended to Spain, Portugal, parts of North Africa, and some islands in the Atlantic.

"The British government has decided to extend the navicert system to all ship-borne goods consigned to any European port as well as to certain Atlantic islands and certain neutral ports in North Africa," Dalton said.

The navicert system was introduced by the Allied powers in an effort to speed neutral ships through the blockade of the Axis powers

It provides for British authorities at the port of departure to certify the nature of a ship's cargo and thus facilitate its examination at blockade control points.

Dalton said that British naval patrols would seize all ships which lack ship or cargo navicerts.

He said that an official of the ministry of economic warfare was going to Spain to confer with Spanish and British embassy officials in regard to Spanish oil imports, which recently have been reported higher than normal, arousing belief that oil was being re-exported to Germany.

Dalton said that Britain wanted Spain to receive adequate oil for internal consumption but not for re-export.

Sir Samuel Hoare and Sir Walford Selby, British embassadors to Spain and Portugal have informed the Spanish and Portuguese governments of Britain's decision to tighten drastically her blockade, especially to thwart the transit of contraband to the Axis powers by way of the Iberian peninsula, it was learned.

Spur Hunt for Robber, Girl-Burglar Suspect

Police Renew Search for Night Raider Seen in 3 Homes Last Night; Girl Arouses Suspicions of Citizens

While they renewed their search for a night prowler blamed for more than a score of house burglaries in the past month, Mansfield police today were confronted with a possibility that a girl-burglar is also operating in the city.

The burglar who has eluded capture on at least four occasions during the past couple weeks was routed from three more homes last night.

In the past 24 hours two downtown offices were looted, a plate glass storeroom window broken and a typwriter stolen, and an automobile reported missing.

A girl was suspected of the daylight robberies after police yesterday were called to investigate her mysterious actions on Wolfe avenue

W. G. Jackson, 18 Wolfe avenue, said the girl called at his home and asked for a family by the name of Ward. When told that it was not the Ward residence she asked to use the telephone directory.

Jackson called police when he observed the girl, described about 20 years old, go to the nearby residence of Homer Beck, 36 Wolfe avenue.

Mrs. Beck told officers that the girl used the same ruse to gain entrance to her home.

Police searched the vicinity but were unable to locate the suspect. They theorized she may be a "spotter" for burglary jobs

Robert Lemly, rear 323 South Main street, called police at 10:30 p. m. yesterday after chasing a prowler from his home. The man ran from the

One-Day Record In Tax Receipts Reported Monday

Monday's tax collections brought a record single day's receipts into the treasurer's office, County Treasurer ohn E Kolb said today

Yesterday's collections amounted to $39,413, more than twice the amount turned in on any one day since the books opened July 1.

Since the tax period opened the first of the month $214,908 has been collected, which is $82,151 ahead of the collections for the same period last year, Kolb said

However, the bulk of the collections are still to come in before the Aug. 20 deadline as the books show more than a million dollars to be collected on this period, including delinquent taxes

Bromfield Back Home, Finds He's Behind In Garden Work

Louis Bromfield was back at Malabar farm today after seven weeks in Hollywood, in which time he turned out a screen play for Charles Laughton

The author arrived here late Sunday night and early Monday morning was at work in his flower garden He was distressed at the havoc wrought by days of searing sun and immediately set about restoring the garden to its early summer beauty.

"I'm certainly glad to be home," he said as he mopped a streaming brow. "Hollywood is a fine place for making a living, but Ohio is a place to live and enjoy life."

The Bromfield farm had taken on additional acreage in recent months with the purchase of another 25 acres in Pleasant Valley and the leasing of 175 acres from the government. The latter is land that lies between the Bromfield farm and the Pleasant Hill conservancy dam. This makes a total of 600 acres at Malabar.

The crops this year at Malabar he said, would be about a normal

PUNISHED: English Coast Hit By New Nazi Air Blows

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—German warplanes struck punishing new blows on Britain's coast today, taking an undisclosed toll of civilian life with air attacks that continued through night and day.

Heaviest hit were towns on the east coast, above and below the mouth of the Thames

A lone Nazi raider, dumping his heavy bombs in several salvos on a congested working class district, killed several persons, one of them an infant, in a southeastern town Several others were injured, some buried under the debris of shattered buildings.

The bombs burst on houses along a narrow street, destroying four on one side and three on the other.

In another raid on an East Anglian town on the coast northeast of London, the ministry of home security said, "some damage was done to property and there were some casualties, a proportion of which were fatal."

Most of the relentless German air warfare was along the coasts of England nearest to France, where the Nazis have been piling blow on blow apparently to "soften" Britain for a blitzkrieg invasion.

A new tally on the wholesale sky fights yesterday over the English channel harbor of Dover—closest to the Nazi-held French coast—increased the unofficial toll of down German warplanes to 25. (The German high command, disputing the British figures, contended today that Nazi losses were only three to 15 for Britain.)

Two Nazi bombers were shot down today.

One was officially reported bagged in the early morning forays and the air ministry later announced that "an enemy bomber was shot down off the northeast coast of Scotland shortly after

MASSED: Germans Prepare For Blitzkrieg On Britain

(By United Press)

MARSEILLES, France—German troops trains and naval forces have been massed in and near France's northwest coast ports and military forces are in movement throughout the part of the occupied zone opposite England, it was reported today.

The zone of activity extended from Dunkirk up near the Belgian frontier and opposite North Foreland at the entrance to the Thames estuary, to Brest, opposite Plymouth and the southwest corner of England, according to advices

Travelers said that the zone of activity indicated gigantic preparations and that it extended 100 miles inland.

Inland, the reports said, all supporting services and materials necessary for imminent operations had been massed.

Certain zones were reported to have been cleared of French civilians but at most places persons who had remained at home during the German advance and post-armistice occupation had not been disturbed, it was said.

Return of refugees to the occupied zone had been checked so highways and railroads could be kept clear for military traffic, it was asserted.

In order to keep troops dispositions secret, reports said, the Germans are moving troops, heavy guns and other materials only at night. From dusk to dawn, it was asserted the roads are filled with columns of military transport.

German naval units were reported to have been moved into French northwestern ports, chiefly torpedo boats and destroyers from Baltic ports and hundreds of swift torpedo carrying motor boats.

New Outfit Aid to Broken Heart

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"My mother and sisters look at me reproachfully and, as it seems to me, with a slight degree of contempt. Yes, I suppose they're sorry for me, but the whole house breathes an air of 'you brought it on yourself.'

"Maybe I'm wrong. I've been wrong enough about some things and I cannot help that cheapest of emotions, feeling sorry for myself. I was engaged to Bob for nearly a year. I adored him, never refused him anything, never could see any faults in him, but my family saw plenty. Got myself talked about and now he's left me and is going with another girl. I hear rumors of an engagement.

"When he told me he didn't care enough about me, he was released. I made no charges and feel I have nothing left in my life but my pride. An office job helps me to get through the day, but oh, the hideous lonesome evenings, and the nights when there is no sleep! Have you any suggestions? How can a girl in my position pick up the pieces and go on?

"FOGOTTEN GIRL."

The fact that you have written this letter shows you're in the right mood to pick up the pieces and go on. Perhaps you couldn't have written as you have, a month or three weeks ago. But your letter shows that the healing process has set in.

There are hundreds of proverbs in the language to the effect that there is as good fish in the sea as ever were caught. If you've let one fish slip off the hook because you used the wrong sort of bait, discard that bait in the future. Whatever it was you did that caused you to lose your fiance, don't repeat the mistake. Perhaps you were too conciliatory, too afraid of giving offense, too docile; the girl who can't say no is often deserted for one who can say it positively.

Perhaps you had certain characteristics that grated—a harsh, rasping voice. Perhaps you laughed too loud and attracted attention to yourself in public. Maybe you wore too much make-up, or clothes that were too conspicuous. Perhaps you showed a mean streak in talking about other girls. Maybe you were a "gimme" gal, although your letter doesn't sound as if you were.

Well, my dear, whatever it was that made the young man cease to care for you, cut that out for the future. You did attract him once; that shows you are not attraction-proof. If you looked desirable to him, you'll appear desirable to someone else, perhaps a better man.

Get yourself a complete new outfit of clothes. There's nothing in the world like that for blotting out old sorrows. Summer sales are here, and you can get ravishing things for half the price they were earlier in the season. Get someone who knows about clothes to go along and help you choose things that will bring out your best points.

Go to the beauty parlor and give yourself the works. Try a new hairdo, new hats. Whether Mrs. Willkie is to be our next First Lady or not, she knows how to choose her hats becomingly. The other day when I happened to be one of the group of newspaper women who interviewed her, she wore a fetching hat of white pique with a black ribbon band. It seemed to be poked up at various angles, but every angle showed a good point.

Don't stay home and weep.

POT PROPAGATION OF STRAWBERRIES

Strawberry beds need to be renewed every three or four years. New plants for this purpose are easily propagated from runners of the old plants. Pot propagation is an excellent method of doing this.

To secure extra fine plants sink three-inch flower pots into the soil up to their rims near the strawberry bed, as shown in the Garden-Graph. These pots should be filled with fibrous loam. Fasten the tips of runners from the strawberry plants across the soil in the pots, as illustrated. Use hairpins to fasten the ends of the runners securely so strong winds will not blow them off the pots before they start to root. For this type of pot propagation it is best to select only the strongest runners from plants which have fruited well. Runners from "blind parents" are unfruitful.

When the pots are filled with roots from the runners, sever the latter from the parent plant. Then remove the new plants from the pots and plant them out. These plants should bear fruit the following year.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I am sorry," my father said quickly, "but we still have no news from your people, although we are daily hoping that we shall hear something. But—we have wonderful and astounding news for you, nevertheless. Your emeralds have been found."

Queen Olga put her hand up to her throat, patently without her volition, and then almost instantly lowered it again. Her face was composed, her figure poised, but I noticed that she swallowed twice before she spoke.

"Did I hear you a-right?" she asked at last. "My emerald necklace—has been found?"

My father's smile at her was indulgent and encouraging.

"Found—and intact," he said. "Would you like to see them?"

She drew a quick, spasmodic breath at my father's question, but her voice was composed.

"Yes, I should like very much to see my emeralds," she said.

He walked slowly to his desk, opened it, and took out the box which I had seen open with its dazzling contents a few minutes before. With it in his hands, he walked over to Olga and held out the box to her.

"Your jewels were not in this box when they were stolen, if I remember correctly," he said.

"No, they were not," Olga answered, and suddenly there was infinite mournfulness in her voice. "They were sewed in the clothing of my faithfulf maid Felice, who was killed on that terrible night. As you remember, a search of her clothing afterward showed that the jewels had been ripped out of their hiding-place. We did not know then whether or not she had ripped them out herself and hidden them somewhere on the boat, or whether one of the desperadoes had taken them from Felice, either killing her in the robbery, for she never would have yielded them while she was yet alive, or ghoulishly robbing her clothing after she was dead."

"That is something we shall not know until I have a chance to interrogate Jack Leslie," my father said. "The secret lies with him. And now for the emeralds. I am convinced that they bear your secret identifying marks, but I should like your confirmation of my belief."

Queen Olga took the hint and opened the box, which my father already had unhasped. As she saw the dazzling, coruscating jewels winking their eyes of fire at her, her face lost its mask for an instant, flamed with the odd ecstasy which comes to the faces of most women and some men when they see beautiful jewels, especially when they own them. And this woman had thought her emeralds forever lost!

She put out her hand and lifted the necklace from the box, letting it trail over her fingers.

"My lovely emeralds!" she said, and there was a wistfulness in her voice which I understood.

My father waited silently while the exiled queen filled her eyes and her touch with the restored jewels, then he said quietly:

"I am sure this is the identical necklace of which you were robbed, but will you please look at the markings and make sure?"

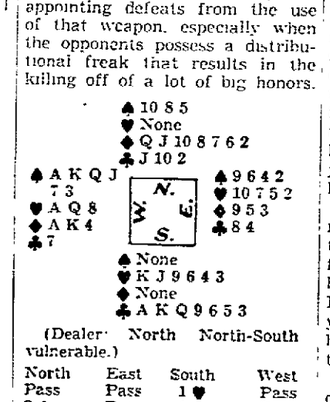
"The Authority on Authorities"

THE "TRAP PASSER"

EVERY FINE competitive player is to some extent a "trap passer." That is, he will at the proper time pass a powerful hand in order to lure the opponents into trouble, so he may later double them and collect a tremendous sum in penalty points. But each of them also has to be steeled to accept some very disappointing defeats from the use of that weapon, especially when the opponents possess a distributional freak that results in the killing off of a lot of big honors.



(Dealer: North North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
5 ♣	Pass	6 ♣	Dbl

West was one of the country's outstanding performers, at either duplicate or rubber bridge. This time he was in a club rubber game with some of his regular cronies, and knew North as a player who never passes an opening bid by his partner. So he knew there was no risk to his first pass. Then, after South had used a forcing jump in clubs on his second turn, West knew that would stay open. So his second pass was perfectly safe. North really should have followed South's 4-Clubs with 4-Diamonds, but the actual bidding was as given.

When South finally bid the small slam, West had to move into action with his double, which against vulnerable opponents was calculated to produce plenty of counters. Imagine the color of his face, if you can, when it turned out that the opponents had a void in every suit but trumps. He led a trump, since each partner had shown a side suit and therefore a cross-ruffing situation. This held the contract to six-odd, one trick being made in hearts. Against any other lead, South can make grand slam.

In the post-mortem, it was brought out that East and West could have made a profitable sacrifice in spades, but could you imagine yourself sacrificing with that hand against a vulnerable slam bid?

Tomorrow's Lesson

Cold Bath Not Best When Tired

By MME. QUI VIVE

More of a nuisance than the man who thinks he can cook—and he's pretty terrible—is the daddy of the family who takes a cold bath every morning and never stops talking about it. His poor wife, like practically all women, hates a cold bath. It is one of the favorite hates of the phrail sex.

A strong, vigorous man with muscles made resilient by exercise can find enjoyment in a prolonged cold shower because his blood streams react quickly. He experiences a sense of exhileration, is the better for it. But the wife of his bosom, having been up all night with the baby, or having gone to bed worn out and frazzled, does not get the same results. For her the warm bath, to quiet a nagging nervous system and to woo relaxation, which is what she needs instead of stimulation.

Ten minutes of relaxation in warm water—eyes closed, mind dreaming, muscles limp — will prove to be a wonderful restorative.

The cold bath is not for the woman who suffers from cold hands and feet, who is not a sound sleeper, who has little or no exercise. Women who are under standard in any way will find the cold bath a depressant. A tepid shower is better. There should follow a vigorous rubdown with a coarse towel. Friction with borated talcum or a bath tonic keeps the skin soft and smooth.

Cold water causes the skin to contract from the shock. The blood leaves the surface, gallops away to underlying fibers, the cutaneous sheath goes white. Exhileration comes only when there is a reaction. If there is no reaction, the effect is much like that of fatigue. For individuals who are weakened by illness or advanced age, it is a menace.

On the complexion cold water has a beneficial effect. The area treated is so limited that it has little effect upon the circulatory system. When tissues have sagged and wrinkles are forming, it should be used freely. It is recommended for oily skin and enlarged pores because it is astringent in effect.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, July 31.

Conflicting testimonies are to be noted in this day's planetary set-up, and while there are not flagrantly adverse aspects, yet there is need for much forethought and discretion in the management of business affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may find the emphasis placed on the social, domestic, artistic or affectional expressions of life during the year. In these there will be found much activity, gratification and emotional happiness.

A child born on this day should have much versatility and unusual talents, perhaps inventive, original and scientific. It may be calculating and shrewd, with peculiar insight or "hunches." Its social and affectional life will be happy and gracious.

CHAPTER IV

Clara was in the swing on the porch when Marilyn skipped up the flower-grown path and took the steps two at a time. Any mail now, the Clarco check would arrive. At the door she stopped.

"Clara," she said, sincerity a tremulo in her young voice, "I'm sorry about the misunderstanding last evening. I'm happy you won, honestly I am. Just think what it means! Not only for you, but for Mums. She's never had anything like it—not in her whole life. She'll come back from New York years younger, years and years. It's you who is doing this for her—"

Clara sat straight and belligerent in the swing. "Who told you I'm taking Ma with me on my trip?" she asked, sharply

"But you won—it entitles you to all expenses for yourself and a chaperon—"

"A chaperon or one hundred dollars in cash'" Clara's smile was triumphant. "Ma isn't making the trip. I'm taking the hundred in cash."

Life in the Marsh home these days was far from tranquil. Marilyn stormed, pleaded, in a valiant attempt to persuade her mother she must go with Clara to New York. She even tried to frighten Mums into taking the trip by rehearsing for her, secretly, some of the dangers of the city for beautiful and unattached young women. Mums was frightened, but there was nothing she could do. Clara needed the extra money for clothes, for expensive cosmetics that would accent and protect her beauty. Half of the hundred dollars was gone already, and Clara had only a few fine feathers to show for her extravagance.

In desperation, Marilyn offered to finance their mother's trip herself from the Clarco award, though she knew Clara would be stopping in expensive hotels and enjoying costly pleasures.

"The roof of the house can go on leaking," she told her father, whose ineffectuality never hurt her more than in this crisis. "The paint can go on peeling. I'll go to working full time at the Bon Ton instead of half time and do my studying at night school. I'll try to hold out five hundred for Bill. I planned to put it in the savings bank, or in bonds, something safe, and leave it there until Bill was ready for college. I know how your whole life has been centered on getting Bill to college, ever since he was born. I want it too, desperately. I hoped we might manage it when I won the thousand—a year or two of college anyhow, maybe the whole of it if Bill would help earn his way. But Mums, I know she counts on being with Clara, seeing her success. It's the breath of life to her. Clara must have discouraged Mums, must have let her understand she'd be a burden. Dad, see if you can't persuade Mums that the thing to do is go with Clara to New York."

"I'll try, daughter," Mr. Marsh said, in his hopeless way. "Your mother don't think so well of my opinion these late years since Clara's grown up and needs so much we can't give her. They get mad every time I pick up a book. They say I should spend that time working and maybe earning an extra dollar or two. Maybe they're right."

"You've tried your best, Dad, I know." Marilyn blinked back the tears. Poor Dad. Life certainly had been a continuous frustration for him. Quiet by nature, as a bookish boy on the threshold of manhood, he had been pushed into the maelstrom of earners who must labor not only for their own existence but for the existence, or better, of a wife and a family. His ambition had been to be a geologist, to travel to the far corners of the earth, to delve into the earth's secrets. For years he had clung to his ambition, pouring over his studies, without direction, far into the night. Ambition was dead now, but the love of the student for his books, his quest after knowledge, remained.

"It's been a mighty poor best," he said.

"Nonsense." Marilyn forced herself to brightness. "We've had grand times together, we Marshes. We're going to keep right on having them too. That's why I want you to speak to Mums. She needs a change. She needs to get away from the dishes and the dresses—from the doing for all of us. You'll try, Dad?"

"Yes, daughter, I'll try." Marilyn thought, Dad isn't young any more. He isn't even middle-aged. He's old, an old man. Her heart ached for him, for that which was dead within him.

Twilight was spreading a lavender blanket over Millville. The edges of the blanket turned purple. Soon it would be dark velvet. On the Marsh veranda Marilyn pondered on the present, peered into the future, answered occasional questions popped at her by young Bill.

"Hey, Sis, wake up, will ya?" Bill brought her back from a column of figures she was adding mentally. "I asked you twice, did you see ol' Clar step out after supper?"

"No, Bill, I didn't notice. I was in my room."

"Boy, was she doll-ed up! You could smell her a mile, with all that junk she squirts on her. Bet she went lookin' for that theater fellow. Say whyn't she let him come lookin' for her? Men don't like girls taggin' after 'em."

Marilyn said laughingly, "Oh, so men don't like girls tagging after them? Since when have you become an expert on the affairs of men? You've had experience?"

"Aw quit kiddin'," Bill scuffed his toes. "She's nuts about that ol' theater jellyfish."

"Bill, don't be like that. You don't know the man. Why do you call him a jellyfish?"

"Well, he must be a jellyfish or he wouldn't fall for that la-de-dah stuff ol' Clar puts out. She makes me sick, moonin'-'round and making faces at herself in the looking glass. Hey, look, somebody's coming up the walk. It's a man. You expecting a boy friend?"

"No, Bill. Probably a friend of Dad's."

The man came into the lane of light that shone out through the front door—the man who had been in the Silver Grill with Clara. Marilyn drew back into the shadows.

"Hello, young fellow," the visitor greeted Bill who was standing asap on the top step. "Are you Bill Marsh?"

"Sure." Bill was being important, none too friendly.

"Good guess. Then you'd be the brother of Miss Clara Marsh. Does she happen to be at home this evening?"

"No, she's out. Went out right after supper."

"You wouldn't know, by chance, where I might find her?"

"You're right, I don't know. Clara wouldn't tell me the time o' day."

"No? That's not very sporting of her. The time of the day can be pretty important to a fellow. Sorry I missed your sister. We had an appointment. Must have been a mix-up. I understood I was to call for her here."

Bill melted under the ingratiating manner of his visitor.

"Maybe you'd better come in on the porch and wait," he offered. "My other sister Marilyn is here. Maybe you could talk with her till Clara turns up. Hey, Marilyn, Sis—here's a man to see Clara."

Marilyn groaned inwardly.

"Oh—yes, yes, Bill. I must have been asleep. Some one for Clara?"

"That's it." To the visitor. "What did you say your name is please?"

"Martino. Al Martino. At your service."

Marilyn emerged from the shadows. The light from the hall touched her hair to a shining halo.

Bill announced solemnly, "Sis, this is Mister Martino. And this is my sister, Marilyn."

"Am I intruding?" Al Martino hesitated on the steps.

"Oh no—no indeed." (Marilyn thought: Bill needs strangling.) "I'll try to locate Clara. I'll try the phone."

"Please don't." The words hinted of a plea. "She's sure to be back presently. Meantime, if you don't mind a bit of a chat—you know I've been hoping I'd meet you. In fact, I made up my mind day before yesterday, when I saw you lunching in the Silver Grill, that I would not leave Millville until I did meet you."

The surprise visit on the veranda was the start of Al Martino's pursuit of Marilyn Marsh. There was nothing subtle about his methods. Frankly he was infatuated. He made no attempt to conceal his infatuation. He bombarded her with invitations, with thoughtful and well-chosen gifts of candy, flowers, books — the conventional presents of a proper young man. He prolonged his stay in Millville long past the necessity of business.

"Please," she begged him, when the atmosphere in the Marsh home became almost unendurable. "I'm not interested in you, Al. I like you well enough, but there are—circumstances I can't explain. Be a lamb, will you, and let's just nod as we pass by?"

"I don't like lambs." Al was stubborn. "They bleat."

"But if I tell you you're making a lot of trouble for me, for all of us? I must ask you not to try to see me again and not to send me another gift. I'd have to return it, and I hate hurting people."

"You ask me to whistle myself off, but it won't do any good because the answer is that I'm not letting the heartbeat of my life pass on with a nod. I'm not such a bad fellow when you get to know me, H. B., for short. There are times when I actually make sense. I have a nice disposition. I'm kind to my mother and to little children. I never kicked a dog. A bright future is predicted for me by my employer, and I think you're a sweet stick of stripped candy with a ribbon bow on it. Now will you take off your cellophane and let me drive you to the River Inn this evening for a plate of chowder?"

Marilyn shook her head. It was hard to be severe with such a persistent, such a jovial young man. "No," she said. "Thank you. I shall be busy this evening—every evening."

"The River Inn, noted for its cuisine and the exclusiveness of its patrons. All the young bloods hereabouts drive their Juliets to the River Inn for a plate of chowder. Do you feel yourself weakening?"

"No. I'm stronger, Al, you must believe me. You don't understand—"

"Come, come, H. B. 'Tain't polite to tell folks they're stupid. I understand you're on a spot, but there's no reason why you should anchor on it. I've promised myself I'd keep clear of—what is none of my business—but when things get too hot — what concerns you is my business. No River Inn?"

"No River Inn."

"Then I'll have to think up some more intriguing place to invite you tomorrow."

FIFTY STORES PARTICIPATING IN BARGAIN DAYS THIS WEEK

Mansfield semi-annual Community Bargain Days are scheduled for Thursday, Friday, under the sponsorship of the Retail Merchants association. Community Bargain Days were inaugurated as a semi-annual event by the association in 1926 and have been featured by the association since that time.

Fifty retailers are participating in the Baragin Days with bargain prices in all lines of merchandise. Thrifty buyers will find merchandise offered at special reduced prices for the two big days.

Participating firms will display yellow and red signs on their display windows during the event. Look for the official store signs.

Free bus rides downtown on Thursday morning at 9 to 11:15 a. m. will be given to the public of Mansfield for the event. Children should be accompanied by an adult for this free ride.

Shoppers from out-of-town may use the Parking Courtesy blank appearing in The News-Journal on Wednesday evening. This courtesy will give out-of-town cars unlimited parking in the downtown district for the two days. The blank must be pasted on the windshield of car.

Bargain Days advertisements will appear in The News-Journal Wednesday evening in a special Bargain Days edition. The ads of the participating stores will be identified by a special border and the Bargain Days insignia.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

President Inspects Eastern Coast Defense Centers

PLEASED WITH PREPAREDNESS ACTIVITY SEEN

Asks Congress For Authority To Call National Guard For Training.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — During the next month or so, while his Republican opponent, Wendell Willkie, is getting himself acquainted with the voters, President Roosevelt plans a series of inspection tours to determine how wisely and how well the army, navy and air corps are expending the multi-billion-dollar appropriation for national defense.

There was no doubt about the seriousness with which the president views possible effects on the United States of continued Nazi-Fascist victories in Europe.

He drove it home forcibly in an all-day Monday tour of the eastern seaboard's defense "nerve center" spanning out from Norfolk, Va.

Obviously pleased by the increased preparedness activity he saw on every side, Mr. Roosevelt nevertheless warned that repulsion of a foreign invasion at the moment would depend largely on when it happened and who the attacking power was.

"A year from now we will feel a lot safer," he said.

Significantly, while inspecting army, navy and air defenses in the Hampton Roads area yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt sent congress a letter saying he was "now convinced that the security of the nation" called for executive authority to order the national guard into intensive training because "I cannot with clear conscience longer postpone this vitally essential step."

As he boarded the White House yacht Potomac last night to return to Washington, the president told reporters:

"We are going to see a lot more. This is just the beginning. We are going to look further into the army and the navy and into aviation."

This was a parried answer to a question as to whether what he had seen at the Norfolk navy yard, the huge army air base at Langley Field, the fleet operating base and training station, the Newport News Shopbuilding and Drydock company, and Fort Monroe's anti-aircraft installation constituted in his mind an answer to administration critics who charge the defense billions are being poorly spent.

His 75-mile swing through the tidewater section yesterday gave indication that a presidential campaign was on. Perspiring, shirt-sleeved thousands lined the streets of Norfolk, Newport News, Hampton and Old Point Comfort as well as the roadways between the military bases, to give the president an enthusiastic welcome despite the near 100 degree temperature.

Mr. Roosevelt twice stressed the number of men put back to work and the heavily increased construction activity. At the Norfolk navy yard he found work 50 per cent increased over last September with 12,000 men now employed as against 7,600. At the privately-owned Newport News yard he found construction up 50 per cent with 12,000 men on the job as against a normal of 6,500.

Taken From Iron Lung 20 Minutes For Childbirth

LOS ANGELES —(U.P.)— Physicians took a woman suffering from infantile paralysis from her iron lung for 20 minutes so she could give birth to a son, it was disclosed today.

Mrs. Virginia Matthews, 23, bore a normal child, though it was a month premature. She was stricken with infantile paralysis Saturday and her child was born on Sunday in the Los Angeles county general hospital.

Dr. Dan Goldenternek, resident obstetrician, was in charge of the delivery. The baby weighed six pounds, three ounces.

"Mrs. Matthews went through the entire labor period in the respirator," said Dr. Goldenternek. "We removed her for probably 15 or 20 minutes while the child was being delivered. Respiration during that time was provided by a resuscitator."

If she survives, physicians believed the delivery will have been the first of its kind in which both mother and child lived.

Japan Extends Search for Spies to Korea

The Tiffin Mudhens, who dropped a doubleheader to the Mansfield Braves at the Fairground last night, had more than their share of bad luck. Besides seeing their ace pitcher, Walt McHugh lose the nightcap, the team had to worry about getting home. On the way here for the games the Mudhens' bus broke down about eight miles out of Mansfield. The bus was brought into the city, but Manager Myles Thomas had to send an SOS call to Tiffin for cars in which the players returned home.

If that water meter installed on the drinking fountain on the main floor at City Hall has done nothing else, it has given city officials an idea for installing new type fountains to conserve water. Finding that the monthly consumption from the fountain amounted to more than $7 Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton today suggested the installation of pedal type for the five fountains in the building.

STORE BOMBED

Resort Concessions Dispute Believed Cause.

PORT CLINTON—(AP)—A dynamite bomb damaged the Allen Clemens Candy Co. building and the Timblin drug store in the business district here early today, police reported. No one was injured.

Authorities said three persons saw a man toss something into the candy store basement and speed away in a large sedan driven by a companion shortly before the explosion. A partition between the two buildings was blown out, windows smashed and merchandise damaged.

Clemens could not be reached immediately but police said they were investigating a possibility the bombing might have some connection with his operation of concessions at nearby Gem and Terrance beaches on Lake Erie.

INDIANA POLITICAN DIES

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—Fred C. Garner, 77, secretary-treasurer of E. C. Atkins & Co. and former treasurer of the Indiana Republican state central committee, died yesterday after a month's illness.

SAWYER ROASTS TAFT, TURNING DOWN PLEA FOR WILLKIE FUNDS

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— A politician's mailing list, like the wayward brother we never speak of, sometimes can cause deep embarrassment.

Republican Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, who was beaten out by Wendell L. Willkie for the party's presidential nomination, made a tactical error when he wrote to Democratic National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, asking for a contribution to Willkie's campaign fund.

Sawyer today gave the press a photographic copy of the letter from Senator Taft, along with a copy of his reply to the senator.

Both are Cincinnati lawyers in their non-political seasons and the letter from Taft appealed to "my fellow attorneys in Hamilton county" to support the Willkie presidential campaign.

Now, Sawyer is an ardent New Dealer. He went down the line for President Roosevelt's renomination at the Chicago convention.

Sawyer wrote a two-page reply to Sen. Taft's letter but packed most of his punch into a postscript, which read:

"May I express to you my admiration for your sportsmanship in trying to do so much for Willkie after what he did to you in Philadelphia."

Sawyer explained that one reason he couldn't contribute—thanks anyhow—was that he had just returned from Chicago, "where we nominated the Democratic candidate who will send Mr. Willkie back to Commonwealth and Southern."

"When Mr. Willkie went with Commonwealth and Southern, the common stock was selling around 29," he wrote. "Just before he got himself nominated it was selling at about 75 cents. Is this proof of his great business and executive ability?"

Sawyer told Taft that he didn't think Willkie needs any money.

"He will doubtless do better than he did when he was a Democrat and contributed $150 to the national campaign," he wrote. "Furthermore, he has a lot of money. In fact, I think his trouble in this campaign will not be lack of money but figuring out ways to keep the contributions divided into small amounts."

INVESTIGATE FOREIGNERS IN ROUND-UP

British Espionage Plot In High Circles Charged By Newspaper.

(By United Press)

TOKYO — Japan extended a search for alleged spies to Korea, where foreigners were arrested today, after a dozen or more had been arrested in Tokyo and additional alleged spies were taken into custody at Kurume and Shimonoseki.

Foreigners arrested in Korea were described as "under investigation" and it was learned here that government leaders were planning to dismiss some 500 foreign instructors in Japanese institutions of learning as result of an alleged British espionage plot and a new "fifth column" scare in newspapers.

It was indicated that the dismissals, if effected, would cover instructors of all kinds in universities and other institutions.

The government was reported also to be preparing for much stricter supervision of all foreign missionaries.

Newspapers warned their readers against "fifth column" activities in connection with the alleged British spy plot.

Yomiuri, of independent and literary tendency, asserted that Britons seized in the alleged plot had concentrated propaganda among elder statesmen, high officials, persons who move in higher social circles and influential newspaper men. It was a scheme, Yomiuri asserted, to alienate Japan from Germany and Italy.

British embassy officials said that the next move as regards the arrest of 11 leading British residents of Japan, and the alleged suicide of Melville James Cox, Far Eastern manager for Reuter's news agency while being questioned at police headquarters, must come from London after consideration by the government of a report from Sir Robert Craigie, British ambassador.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Miss Midnight's Diary.

Even the heat wave didn't chase all the Glamor out of town. Or maybe all the Glamor is responsible for the heat wave. Lili Damita, for example, is around and about the night spots, and Lili can make the temperature seem higher even in the most violently air-conditioned bistro.

She was ringsiding at LaConga Sunday night with young Alexis Thompson, and as they are being seen about a great deal in various midnight places I suppose the usual romance rumors will get under way any moment now, but if you ask me they are just good friends; at any rate, I didn't notice that any hands were being held.

Phyllis Brooks was at LaConga too, with a gathering of friends, and half the other people in the room didn't realize it was Phyllis Brooks because she's changed her hair—which used to be palest blond—to a reddish brown. . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carey headed a family-looking group, the always vivacious Irene Bordoni presided over some Louisiana Purchasers, including exotic Carol Bruce, and Judy Canova turned up with that ever-wandering dream prince, Lyle Talbot.

Some feature writer with a lot of time and patience really ought to follow Lyle Talbot around for a week and do a play by play piece on him. He is such an energetic beau he makes Burgess Meredith, Col. Gonzalo Gomez, Macoco, and Tommy Manville look like bashful schoolboys, and the whole town—at least the gossip-minded section of the town—seems more interested in his romances than anything in life. Go to the Stork club and someone is sure to sidle over and whisper in your ear:

"Say, do you know who Lyle Talbot is really crazy about? That little blond torch singer at the bzzz-bzz-bzz" . . .

Sit quietly in the Beachcomber and you hear someone at the next table murmuring:

"I know he goes out with a lot of girls, but he's really crazy about that one who's his schoolday sweetheart from Lancaster, O."

The phone rings, and it's someone saying:

"This is the lowdown on Talbot. His real heart is Betty Zilch, the Diamond Horseshoe chorline."

The mail comes, and it contains a note from a spy saying:

"Don't tell where you got this, but Lyle Talbot has proposed to Annie Doakes, the kid who used to do that Hawaiian dance at the old Paradise."

For a fellow who was, as I recall, fairly inconspicuous in the films, Lyle has garnered an extraordinary amount of attention in New York by sheer force of the number of his romances. As I say a good reporter might discover a story there. Maybe there are two of him.

The Savoy-Plaza was glittering with chic, American and Continental, Monday night, and with humor — strictly America, for around the room were spotted such wits and elegantes as Elsa Schiaparelli, Ilka Chase, Jack Pearl and Ethel Merman. Schiaparelli must have approved of Hildegarde scartorially as well as vocally, for the blond singer appeared in three different and equally glamorous evening gowns between 11:30 and 1 a. m.

She turned out to be an adlibber, too. When the spotlights refused to function during the second show, and darkness hid her from the audience, Hildegarde cried:

"Quick, somebody! Call the Edison Company and have them send Spencer Tracy right over!"

The same evening was a packed one at Ben Marden's Riveria, across the bridge, where the Manhattanites go for a terrace table and the Hudson River breeze. Ed Wynn was there with Albertina Rasch (an odd combo, as the boys say) and he said he never felt better in his life, and the way he looked made you believe it. Eddie Cantor drifted in with Jack Robbins and Fausto Curbello, and laughed heartily at the antics of George Givot and Al Trahan. Bert Wheeler had polite hysterics, too—comedians are certainly getting more and more charming to each other.

Some time after midnight, Robert Sweeney (Barbara Hutton's ex-fiance) came in with Bea Ammidown. They withdrew quietly to a terrace table, and sat looking at the moonlit river.

George Raft spent the other night in a rear corner of the Hurricane rehearsing the routines for his personal appearance at the Strand. Helping him was Bert Wheeler (accompanied by Grace Gilern, the dancer, who is his Best Girl—and heckling him was Rudy Valee (accompanied by what do you think? a beautiful brunet).

There was a silent, husky-looking individual sitting with Raft and following him around at a respectful distance, and this bothered Wheeler.

"Bodyguard?" he asked Raft.

"No," whispered Raft, "my masseur!"

The St. Regis had a really entrancing tableful at the Viennese Roof: Lady Mendl, Ambassador William E. Bullitt, James A. Farley, the Gilbert Millers and Beth Leary are quite a combination in any headwaiter's life, and as if that were not quite enough, Thomas E. Dewey sat practically within earshot of Mr. Farley, the Marshall Fields waltzed, and so did the William Vanderbilts.

Mr. Farley didn't dance. He just sat and chatted and ignored a smart-aleck who stopped at his table to ask if Roosevelt was going to run for a third term.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It was gravy day for Jones. All he had to do was sit on a movie set and watch his cab work.

Jones doesn't care much for movies, but he does go for a gravy day. Jones is a cab driver, and when a gravy day comes along he's sure of collecting $4 by just sitting. An ordinary day, when he's in his cab and working on fares, he has to hustle to make that much for himself. In pictures the cab gets $10 a day—$6 for the company and $4 for Jones. It's sixty-forty on fares, too, so the only difference is that in pictures there's no hustling.

The boys at the cab station share the gravy. After Jones gets through his stint on "Before I Die," his name goes to the bottom of the gravy list. Tomorrow the top man on the list will get the job.

Jones is witness to some nice movie stuff today. It's a Ben Hecht movie, directed, written and produced by Ben Hecht.

Hecht, coatless and hatless, cigar in his mouth, is directing in lusty fashion. He loves rain in the city, and rain is streaming down from overhead pipes. It streams down on the city streets outside the "Sunset Hotel," which flashes a neon light over the doorway, and it patters on the hood of the cab as it parks at the curb. The rain splashes Rita Hayworth and Doug Fairbanks, Jr. and Thomas Mitchell and John Qualen as they get out of the cab and go inside.

They rehearse it once, without rain, and then they shoot it, with rain, and it's in the can in one take. This goes to show how little Hecht knows about producing and directing, because if he doesn't watch out he'll get the picture finished ahead of time and then the bosses will think he's no good.

But let's get back to Jones, who's sitting on a box way in the background and isn't interested.

"I been out here 15 years and I see 'em make plenty of movies," says Jones. "In the old days, a driver used to drive his cab in the pictures, and he'd collect for being in the picture. The actors' guild put a stop to it. If we'd put up a squawk maybe we could still be getting it, but we didn't squawk. Now they get an actor to drive and we just stand by."

Jones says the taxi business is not what it used to be in Los Angeles. Too many private cars and not enough "riders." Used to be, he says, that people from the movie studios would call a cab to ride a block. Now they walk, or drive themselves. But he still gets plenty of movie calls—and tips are even better than in the good old days. Used to be, he says, that 15 cents or a dime, a strict 10 per cent, was all a driver could hope for. Now it goes over—from two-bits to 40 cents to half a buck.

Hermans Look Forward to Tilts With All-Stars

Believe They Can Sweep Series for City Softball Title; Hermans Win 14th.

THEIR 14th victory safely tucked away, the undefeated Sons of Herman today are looking forward to their clash with the Mansfield Wrecking Company All-Stars in a five-game series for the city softball championship.

Manager Frank Beeber was pleased with the showing of the Hermans as they stopped the Willard Elks, 6 to 1, at Willard yesterday, and today stated that if the team played the same caliber of ball it would sweep the series which gets under way at 6:15 p. m. Thursday at Liberty park.

Paced by Frank Balbaugh, who had a perfect day with "four for four," the Herman combine smashed out 11 hits, including a home run by George Hummel, a triple by Balbaugh and a double by Ed Henrich.

Meanwhile, the All-Stars, under the direction of Nick Wagner, will hold a workout at Liberty park at 6 15 p m Wednesday and the pilot expects to see what combinations will work together the best.

With some of the finest talent in this district available, the Wreckers are not a bit scared of the spectacular record chalked up by the Hermans this season and believe they can stop the club.

It still is a mystery today who Beeber and Wagner will start in the first game, but indications point to a pitchers' duel between "Stub" Winebrenner and Jimmy Fullager Winebrenner, star moundsman of the Tinkey Lumbers is one of the finest hurlers in the Y. M. C. A. leagues, and Wagner hopes he can turn the trick.

If Winebrenner fails Wagner will still have Dale McKinley, strike out king of the Alta Lumbers and Bob Lapine, righthand ace of the Wreckers, to send against the touted Hermans.

Beeber used Freddie Carver against the Willard outfit last night and the righthander responded with a neat five-hit performance

The Hermans pounced over two markers in the first to give Carver an early lead and that margin proved to be enough as Carver held the Elks to one run.

The Hermans added a run in the third and finished their scoring with three tallies in the sixth Freddie was in trouble only once when the losers scored their marker.

Nick Weber, former Mansfield high football star, and now a halfback on the University of Tennessee gridiron team, played second base for the Hermans last night He secured one of the Hermans' hits and figured in a double play.

Henrich was the only other player besides Balbaugh to collect more than one hit—he had a double and single

Feller Seeks 17th Victory Against Sox

Tribe Tangles With Boston Under Lights Tonight.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The first American League club that "develops a hot streak and piles up a string of victories" will end the dog-fight for leadership and take the pennant, says Manager Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox.

And the Cleveland Indians, opening a three-game series tonight, hoped to start such a victory string against Cronin's Cronies.

Bob Feller, declared in shape after the extraction yesterday of a tooth cracked by a sandlotter's thrown ball, seeks his 17th victory in tonight's game. He'll also try to go the full route for the 20th time this season, and if he lasts six frames he will have pitched 200 innings.

Young Jim Bagby, who gave Feller some trouble before dropping a game at Boston during the Tribe's last eastern trip, will oppose the speedballer.

Cronin, beset with pitching woes and tired after a series in St. Louis' extreme heat prefaced his comments on the pennant race with the question.

"Have the Indians started to build temporary bleachers for the World series?"

He liked the Indians' chances as well as those of any first division club.

"You can't concede the flag to the Tigers nor can you count the Yankees out of the fight," said the Boston pilot. "The Indians lack power at the plate, the Red Sox need pitching strength, the Yankees have pitching and power but don't get both on the same day, while the Tigers are beginning to feel the wear and tear of battle."

Idle yesterday, Cleveland came within one game of first-place Detroit as the Tigers dropped a decision to the Philadelphia Athletics.

Kansas City Dishes It Out

Score 11 Victories Out of Last 15 Tilts.

(By Associated Press)

At home or abroad the Kansas City Blues dish out the same treatment to the opposition, which explains why the leaders now are eight games out in front

Three weeks ago Manager Billy Meyer's defending champions started on an eastern trip in second place behind Minneapolis and won 10 of 13 games to regain first place.

The Blues ended a home stand against the eastern clubs yesterday with a 3 to 2 victory over Indianapolis This gave the leaders 11 victories in 15 games at home

Columbus handed Minneapolis a merciless beating 21 to 5 the Birds' runs total being only four under the league record Columbus got 25 hits but only two were homers by Harry Walker and Dick Ticarelli

Louisville's victory over Milwaukee was almost as decisive, a 16 to 4 triumph that dropped the Brewers into seventh place.

The St Paul-Toledo game was played earlier as part of a double-header.

The Congregationals scored three times in the first frame, twice in the fourth four in the sixth, two in the seventh and two in the eighth. The Lutherans only tally came in the first inning

Bush, Congregational second sacker, led the hitters with a double and three singles, while Olin, Congregational outfielder, netted a pair of doubles.

In the other Church league game last night the St. Johns moved into a tie for third place with the First Methodists by defeating the Methodists 14 to 11. Augustine was on the mound for the victors while McFarland toed the rubber for the Methodists.

Heroes and Goats

(By International News Service)

HEROES—Johnny Vander Meer, Cincinnati Reds pitching ace, celebrated his 25th birthday by hurling his second consecutive no-hit game and second in home park, as he blanked the Boston Braves, 7-0, Sunday. Vander Meer's performance was the first time in baseball history that a pitcher has hurled two no-hit games in succession. Vander Meer's first no-hit game was against the Brooklyn Dodgers at Cincinnati June 15, 1938. Vander Meer's second no-hit game was against the New York Giants at Cincinnati June 11, 1938. Vander Meer's second no-hit game was against the Boston Braves at Cincinnati July 30, 1940.

Oilers Claim Forfeit Over Fostoria Birds

FINDLAY — (U.P.) — Manager Grover Hartley of the Findlay club in the Ohio State Class D baseball league claimed a forfeit today over Fostoria on the grounds that the team failed to appear to play a postponed game yesterday. Hartley said Paul Shank, Toledo, league president, had set the game after its postponement early in May. However, even the umpires failed to show up.

Long Barmen Stretch Lead To 8 Points

Class 'A' Leaders Wallop Nite Club 5 to 0.

If any team other than the Long Bar plans to cop The News-Journal Class "A" league golf title for 1940 it had better start bearing down.

Marking up a 5 to 0 victory over the Nite club yesterday evening at Possum Run, the Long Barmen went eight points out in front in the league, the largest lead any foursome has built up so far this season.

Carl Kushin led the Long Bar's attack, shooting a 34 for two under par. He defeated Pete Zeides, number one man on the Nite club team, who smacked out a 37

Low scoring honors however, went to Pete Linster of the Richland Printing club who chalked up a par-shattering 33 to defeat Al Kushin of the Mansfield Athletic Supply team by two strokes.

Frank Cipris, Sloan's Drugs number one man also figured strong among the low scorers by getting a 35 in a match with Nick Linster of the Oaks club. Linster had a 39.

Also shooting par golf yesterday was Al Hager, Yuncker Brothers. Rollie Rachel, Oaks, and Lawrence Deley, Mansfield Athletic Supply. All three had 36 cards.

Other match results after yesterday's play were: Richland Printing 1, Mansfield Athletic Supply 1, (two matches postponed); Yuncker Brothers 4, Barnes & Schmid Tires 1; and Sloan's Drugs 2, Oaks club 1, (one match postponed).

Senators Edge Toward Top

Forge to Within Game of Mid-Atlantic Lead.

CANTON —(AP)— Charleston's Senators were within a game of the Mid-Atlantic league leadership today.

The Senators took a doubleheader from the Canton Terriers last night, while the first-place Akron Yankees were losing to Portsmouth, 4 to 3.

Running the first game to 10 innings, the Senators broke loose with a seven-hit, five-run barrange in the 10th to clinch a 11 to 9 victory and 8 to 2 decision in eight innings.

At Youngstown, the Browns and Dayton put on a see-saw battle which saw Youngstown score two runs in the ninth to knot the count and add another in the 10th for a 10-to-9 win.

Today's schedule: Akron at Portsmouth, Charleston at Canton, Dayton at Youngstown.

Bob Gives Up Five Hits, Tony Very Effective

Braves Annex First Tilt, 5 to 1; Score Easy 8 to 4 Win In Nightcap; Play at Findlay Today.

By CHARLES MARTIN, News-Journal Sports Editor.

CHIEF DEWEY STOVER and his Warriors called on Bob Arnold and Tony Drewek to halt the Tiffin Mudhens out at the Fairground last night and both youngsters responded in fine fashion.

Bob went to the hill in the seven-inning opener and held the Tiffin combine to five hits, and a 5 to 1 triumph, while Tony followed him in the nightcap under the floodlights and set Tiffin down with six bingles, to chalk up an 8 to 4 victory.

Approximately 600 spectators, including nearly 100 Boy Scouts, witnessed the Braves' last home game until Sunday and are sure Arnold and Drewek will win their shares of contests before the Ohio State league season closes.

The twin victory gives the Braves a four-and-a-half game lead over the fourth-place Fremont team which lost to Lima 4 to 2 last night. Rex Benton is expected to work on the hill tonight when the Braves invade Findlay to tackle the second-place Oilers.

With the poor brand of hurling the Braves have been receiving during the past month, last night's performances were heartening to Pilot Stover.

Mansfield went to work on Thomas and Warner in the first setto and pounded out 12 hits. After Tiffin tallied once in the second, the Braves retaliated with two markers in the last of the second to take a lead that was never seriously threatened as Arnold handcuffed the Mudhens.

With Howard Beals and Dick Morse contributing triples and Herb Woodten and Hal Hundemer a double apiece, the Braves added two runs in the third and their final tally in the fourth.

Tiffin collected its lone run on a single in the second and the only other hits were a pair of singles in the fourth. In the other innings the Mudhens didn't get a thing that looked like a hit. Bob fanned two and gave up a pair of walks.

Drewek had a tougher time of it than Arnold Tony got himself in a hole in practically every inning because of his wildness—he gave up nine walks—but he fanned nine to pull himself out of a number of bad spots.

Drewek allowed the Mudhens but one hit in the first four innings, but two walks, coupled with a single and double gave the Tiffin outfit three runs in the fifth. There markers enabled the Mudhens to knot the score.

The Braves, who hadn't beaten Walter McHugh this season, teed off against the Tiffin hurler in the third and dented the plate three times to grab an early lead.

Tiffin's three runs tied the score, but the Braves added a tally in the fifth to regain a lead that was never relinquished. Mansfield scored two runs in the seventh and two more in the eighth to assure Tony a victory. The last Tiffin run came in the ninth on a double and single.

A highlight of the game was the way Drewek handled Dick Cassini, Tiffin second baseman, who is pacing the individual batting race. Cassini faced Tony five times, struck out twice and never hit the ball out of the infield.

* * *

Hitting honors in the opener went to Beals and Morse, the former getting a triple and single and the latter duplicating the feat. In the nightcap Woodten led the nine-hit attack with three singles. Hundemer added two bingles to the attack.

M'NEILL GOOD TENNIS MAN, BUT GOLF—OH!

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y. —(AP)— If Don McNeill weren't such a poor golfer, he might have been in the second round of the 30th annual Meadow club invitation tournament today.

McNeill passed up the Sea Bright tournament last week because he had too much tennis. With so much leisure time he decided to see what could be done about his golf game. He spent many hours among the trees trying to recover from poor shots, and picked up a case of poison oak, which may force him to default today.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(U P)—Will all the public links golfers in the United States please meet at my apartment next Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. Bring your clubs because we may have to go out and play a little.

* * *

The situation is this: The American Golf association, a new organization with which I am unfamiliar, through its president, Fred W. O'Bannon, who I don't know, has named me member of a committee to select the twelve best public links amateurs to meet the twelve best amateurs from private clubs in an All-America cup match.

My fellow committeemen are Damon Runyon of Lindy's restaurant and Joe Turp Runyons, and Davis J. Walsh, cherub-faced sports authority of the west coast. With Runyon's stable racing at Saratoga and Walsh gone glamor man in Hollywood, I feel that I am going to fall heir to most of the work.

This doesn't bother me, however, because I have all my plans laid out and feel confident of choosing a side that will trample the private club team which Mr. O'Bannon says will be named by Bobby Jones, Grantland Rice and Herb Graffis. These men know more about golf than I do, especially Bobby Jones, who used to be a right smart player in his day. But it is in my method of selecting a team that I will outwit them.

I plan to play a match with each public links player golfer in America. No haphazard selection for me. No just going by what is in the record books. Those who don't beat me even will be automatically eliminated as candidate for the team. Then I will take a stroke a hole from those left and play them matches. Those who lick me can continue and give me two strokes a hole. Then three strokes, then four strokes until, finally, the field of eligibles is reduced to the needed number of players and alternates.

By playing between 10,000 and 15,000 holes of golf a day I should have my team ready by late September, which is when Mr. O'Bannon says the match will be played.

If either of my fellow committeemen have any objections to this plan (and I don't see how they possibly could, because after all it is my own feet I am going to wear out) they had better show up Sunday. Not only show up, but show up early because there are only six chairs in the living room and I am confidently expected around 2,000,000 golfers. My wife plans to have a hired girl in to help serve the sandwiches and punch.

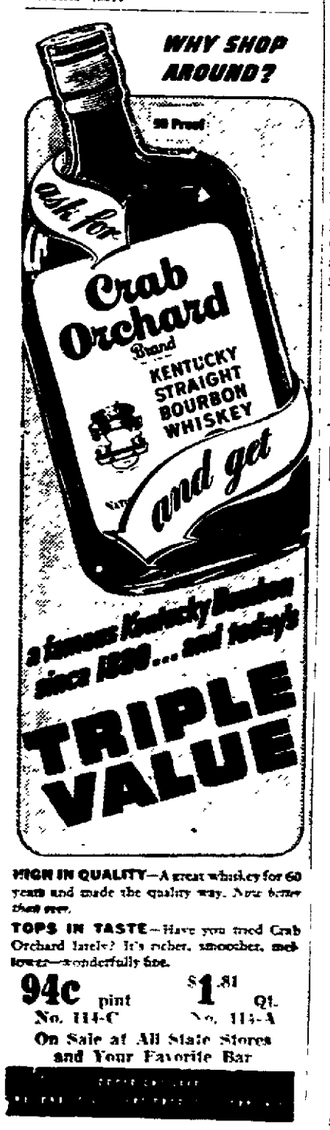
Knowing the Messrs. Runyon and Walsh I feel they may possibly object to one plan I have in mind—that of naming myself playing captain of the team. It is probably the only chance I will ever have to be captain of any kind of golf team, so why shouldn't I seize the opportunity?

DE CORREVONT EXPECTED TO SURVIVE OPERATION

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn.—(U P)—The splendid physical condition of Bill De Correvont, Northwestern University halfback, made his chances of recovery from an emergency appendectomy excellent, Dr. Henry Lysne affirmed today, though the athlete was still on the "serious condition' list.

JEFFRA OUTPOINTS ARMSTRONG

BALTIMORE—Harry Jeffra, 121½, Baltimore, featherweight champion, outpointed Spider Armstrong, 125, Toronto (15).



HIGH IN QUALITY—A great whiskey for 60 years and made the quality way. Now better than ever.

TOPS IN TASTE—Have you tried Crab Orchard lately? It's richer, smoother, mellower—wonderfully fine.

Harry Fay of the City News took low-scoring honors yesterday, clicking off a 37. Hugh Ferguson of the Tuckers was next with a 39.

Dodgers Keep Up Their Fist Fight Record

Team Has Only 3 Clubs to Go For Perfect Record.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(CP Sports Writer)

Baseball still is a bruising battle in Brooklyn and the Dodgers have only three clubs to go to accumulate a perfect record of at least one fist fight with every team in the National league.

* * *

The latest flare-up involved Catcher Babe Phelps of the dauntless Dodgers and Shortstop Arky Vaughn of the once phlegmatic Pirates. It came in the final breathless moments of one of the whackies ball games seasoned spectators at Ebbets field have ever seen.

For eight innings yesterday, Curt Davis held the Pirates helpless with four scattered hits and the only excitement, aside from the steady tattoo of his teammates in thumping up a six-run lead, was the banishment of Manager Frank Frisch of the Pirates for protesting a play at second base in the sixth stanza. It was the sixth time this season he has been chased by an umpire.

But in the ninth the Pirates set off a dynamite display under Davis, scoring six runs before Tot Pressnell could stop them. Then when the Dodgers came to bat, Phelps was thrown out at first and Vaughan hustled over to the bag, apparently to ask Elbie Fletcher, Pirate first baseman, if Phelps had tried to spike him. Whatever the answer, Vaughan and Phelps waded into each other and were hard at it before teammates could intervene.

Thus the Pirates lined up behind the St. Louis Cardinals, Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds as fistic foes of the Dodgers this season.

The 7-6 victory enabled the Dodgers to cut another notch off Cincinnati's apparently ample lead as the Reds dropped a 4-3 decision to the New York Giants.

Bob Bowman pitched seven-hit ball as the St. Louis Cards whipped the Boston Bees 8-3 and climbed back to fifth place.

* * *

Another seven-hit pitching performance was turned in by Claude Passeau of the Chicago Cubs in beating the Phillies 7-3. In the only game in the American league the Philadelphia Athletics again exercised their jinx over the pace-setting Detroit Tigers, getting a 9-7 verdict that shaved Detroit's lead over Cleveland to one game.

Redlegs Hope Derringer Can Halt Tailspin

Hubbell and Giants Hand Cincy 4-3 Beating.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds looked to big Paul Derringer, who has produced two one-hit games this season, to pull them out of their tailspin today as they faced another brush with the Giants and the offerings of Prince Hal Schumacher.

* * *

Adding to their pennant lead daily, the Rhinelanders were brought sharply to earth by the Phillies. Manager Bill McKechnie juggled the batting lineup to no avail. The Reds were spotted a three run lead by the Giants yesterday and then finished on the short end of a 4-3 count.

The New Yorkers marked up the victory at the expense of Lloyd (Whitey) Moore, fourth Redleg pitcher to see action. The Giants started their scoring in the sixth with Frank Demaree's homer.

A walk, Harry Danning's single and Babe Young's grounder counted another in the seventh and the Giants put another run across in the eighth. In the ninth Moore nipped Danning on the hand with a pitched ball and Young banged out a double to bring the Horse home for the deciding run.

Credit for the victory went to Jap Lynn. King Carl Hubbell was the hero of the encounter. He allowed the Reds but six hits in 7 2-3 frames.

The Reds started out to do it with homers. Harry Craft parked one into the leftfield stands in the fourth and Ival Goodman connected for a round trip in the fifth.

Morrie Arnovich got a triple in the same frame and came home on Billy Myers' fly but the Reds stopped there.

* * *

The defeat put the league leading Reds back to a seven games in front of the Dodgers who defeated Pittsburgh.

Looking For Competition

Tennis Favorites Breeze Through 1st Round.

GAMBIER — (AP) — Favorites looked for stiffer competition today in the annual Western Junior and Boys' Tennis tournament after breezing through opening matches and working up a sweat only because of the near 100-degree temperature.

Leading the parade into the third round of the boys' division was Bob Faulkenburg of Hollywood, Calif., who trimmed C. Myrer of St. Louis, Mo., 6-2, 6-1, after drawing a first round bye.

Also victorious in a second round match was Richard Randall of Oak Park, Ill., who beat Edwin of Washington, 6-4, 6-2.

Charles Sampson of Portsmouth came through with a hard fought triumph over Jerry Maulloney of Milwaukee, Wis. 9-7, 6-3.

Besides Faulkenburg, seeded players advancing in the boys' division were Jack Tuero of New Orleans, No. 2; Clarence Mabry of Alice, Texas, No. 3, and Art Aichardson of St. Louis, No. 4.

Junior stars moving ahead without difficulty included the four top-seeded players, Earl Cochell of Los Angeles, Tom Brown of Chicago, Marshall Chambers of Cincinnati and Bill McMurry of Oklahoma City.

Chambers is Ohio high school champion; McMurry captained the Kenyon College freshmen team this year.

ENTERS THIRD ROUND

GAMBIER, O.—(UP)—Bob Faulkenburg, of Hollywood, Cal., seeded No. 1, in the boys' division of the Western Junior and Boys Tennis champions, found himself in the third round today by reason of a bye and a 6-2, 6-1, trouncing of C. Myrer, St. Louis, Mo.

KNOX DECISIONED CROWELL

CHICAGO — Buddy Knox, 186, of Dayton, O., decisioned Chuck Crowell, 215, of Los Angeles, in a 10-round feature bout at Marigold Gardens here last night.

DEMPSEY ADDS ANOTHER TO STRING OF KAYOES

CHARLOTTE, N. C. — (INS) — Jack Dempsey may be getting a bit on the elderly side as former heavyweight champions go, but 5,000 fans were convinced today that it will be many years before an unknown gives Dempsey any trouble in the ring.

They were convinced by the way Dempsey knocked out Ellish Bashara, 28-year-old Oklahoma wrestler, after one minute and 37 seconds of their bout last night. Bashara was on the floor five seconds after the opening gong sounded, and at no time gave the former champion any opposition.

Baseball, Baseball, Who's Got The Baseball?

Hey, you guys, there's the ball—right there. Frank Gustine of the Pirates searches for the ball as Norman Young of the Giants slides in safely. Nice shot by the cameraman, eh Horace?

Just One Dozen Fine New Homes Are Under Construction In Coolridge Heights

Several young couples are making their start to own their own home in this sub-division.

Located on the left side of the Ashland-Mansfield road, 2 miles east of the square at the top of Pulver's Hill.

There will be a number of more homes started soon. You, too, will take advantage of this opportunity if you will only come out and investigate the same.

This beautiful sub-division with its winding drives, with all the utilities, paved streets all paid for, water, gas and electricity, high and dry affords a beautiful view of the entire city. These home sites are artistically laid out and the contour of the ground makes it an ideal place to build.

Restrictions prevail. No shacks, garage houses or trailers will ever be tolerated here.

Your investment in this subdivision will always be secure.

It is handy to the schools, factories and the down town district.

These homes now under construction can be inspected by you. We have all kinds of designs for you to choose from. We can build you just what you want.

Come out and choose your site and let us assist you in picking out the home that will meet your needs. Let us explain how easy it is to own your own home.

We are offering these large home sites from $100 to $300. We arrange the terms to suit you.

Come out and get in on this boom. You are bound to make money. Now is the time to get started.

Drive out tonight. Salesmen will be on the ground between 6 and 8 p. m.

INDUSTRIALS PACE MARKET RALLY FORAY

'Sold Out' Condition on Exchange Suspected by Speculators.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Industrials today led the stock market on another rallying foray.

While early gains running to 2 or more points were chipped down by profit taking, recoverles were well distributed near the fourth hour.

Brokers credited the better showing of the list partly to the belief of many that a "sold out" condition existed. Propping sentiment also, it was added, was more hopefulness in Wall street for British resistance to the Nazi onslaught and cheerful business signs.

Bonds were selectively higher and commodities fairly steady.

Stocks well in front most of the time—some eventually slipped—were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Boeing, Anaconda, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Western Union and N. Y. Central.

Steels were propped not only by the brightening outlook for this industry when defense spending really gets going, but by expectations of some in boardrooms that U. S. Steel directors, later in the day, would vote another dividend on the common stock.

Market analysts found pleasing reading in the summary of the Association of American Railroads disclosing net operating income of Class 1 carriers for the first six months of 1940 totaled $242,366,834 compared with $165,623,219 in the like period last year.

Implement company shares had to contend with estimates cash income of farmers has been failing lately due principally to wavering live stock prices.

HEAR FDR OK'S PRESENT BILL

the measure too far-reaching, but emphasized that he had not discussed it with President Roosevelt.

The bill up for final approval today by the senate military committee, would call for registration of all men between 18 and 64, with those between 21 and 45 subject to a selective draft and subsequent military training.

Byrnes, however, said he favored limiting legislation mainly to those who might logically be called for immediate army and navy service.

As the house military committee resumed hearings on the subject, Representative May told reporters that since estimates indicated the conscription program would cost $100,000,000, he was looking for places to reduce it. This probably could be done, he said, lowering the top age limit of the men who might be called into service.

"I don't quite see the object of laying open to the draft every man up to 45," May said. "That is as far as we went in the World war days. It might create less hysteria for the top limit to be put at 30 or 31."

Opponents of the measure, meanwhile, sought to displace it with legislation suggested yesterday by the president authorizing him to call out the National Guard and the officers reserve corps for active training.

Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.) who has opposed the Burke-Wadsworth bill, said he thought that if the National Guard was called out for a year's training, "that ought to be an answer to this proposal to train everybody."

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) another opponent of the Burke-Wadsworth measure, said he would have no objection to the president's ordering training of the gaurd if he could demonstrate that it was necessary. Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) echoed that view.

Argentine Reservation Clouds American Solidarity

NATIONS HAVE AGREEMENT ON DEFENSE PLAN

Act of Havana States Deep Concern Over European Holdings In West.

(By Associated Press)

HAVANA—An Argentine reservation on the all-important question of foreign possessions in the new world today clouded the solidarity of the 21 American republics as their foreign ministers reached the end of their conference on hemisphere economic and political defense.

The unanimity rule of the conference, a pan American tradition, technically was upheld as the delegates agreed on the many defense matters, but Argentina at the last moment of last night's secret plenary session reserved the right of its government to pass finally on the merits of the act of Havana.

This act declared the deep concern of all American republics in the status of European possessions in this hemisphere and authorized American nations singly and jointly to assume temporary control of European colonies if deemed necessary to protect the continent.

Hence Argentina's 11th-hour reservation somewhat dampened the enthusiasm of some delegates who had predicted there would be no chink left in the armor of continental solidarity.

Some delegates, however, said they believed the Argentine action was, as the Argentines themselves expressed it, "academic." They gave the opinion that the conference had taken another step towards its objectives—to establish firmly a three-point basis of inter-American defense and collaboration.

With this encouragement in mind, foreign ministers Maurico Nabuco of Brazil and Miguel A. Campa of Cuba touched up farewell speeches for delivery at today's final public plenary session.

They chose as their theme mutual congratulation for bringing the Americas into these declarations:

1. That they would not tolerate the menace of a foreign foot on American soil nor of a change of flags over hemisphere colonies.

2. That they would collaborate against the dreaded "fifth column" even to the extent of challenging the "packing" of foreign embassies and legations and consulates with subversive elements.

3. That they would do their best to divert United States credits toward a solution of the surplus exports problems and attempt to develop hitherto neglected Latin American products of a non-competitive nature.

Say Reservation Entirely Normal

BUENOS AIRES —(AP)— A foreign office spokesman said today that Argentina's reservation about signing the Havana conventions was "entirely natural and normal since, in all such cases, agreements to treaties require legislative approval."

Author Back, Works In Garden

First concern of Author Louis Bromfield on his return to Malabar Farm after seven weeks in Hollywood was his flower garden. The heat wave and blazing sun have played havoc with many of the perennials and Bromfield immediately began coaxing them back to their former thriving condition. Ignoring the 95-degree temperature, he worked in his garden all day yesterday and expects to continue until he has repaired the damage.

yield. The orchards, however, will yield only about half of what they produced last year.

The author will return to Hollywood in January, he said, to write a screen drama for Carole Lombard. With the exception of a short business trip to New York City in September, he expects to remain at Malabar until the first of the year.

While in the film capital this time he wrote a character play, "Mr. Pinkie" for Laughton and made a film short which will be used as a trailer for "Brigham Young," soon to be released. Bromfield wrote the Mormon story last year in Hollywood.

He also started his next novel while on the Pacific coast. It will be a period novel of New Orleans and is unnamed at present. It probably will be published first as a serial, making its appearance in January. His last novel "Night in Bombay" is being filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Joan Crawford in the leading role.

Bromfield said today that he has applied to the immigration department to bring seven English children here for the duration of the war. They are children of friends in England and he has vouched for their support and education. Just when they can be sent over here, if at all, was problematical, he said, but he is making plans to care for them if their transportation can be arranged.

house when he arose to investigate a noise, he said.

Officers said entrance was gained through a front door which had been left unlocked.

C. H. Eller, 91 East Second street, reported a prowler near his home and police searched unsuccessfully in the vicinity of 183 West Third street, after a prowler had been reported in that neighborhood.

Officers were called to the J. F. Orr Typewriter company, 136 Park avenue west, at 5:30 a. m. today, when a show window was found smashed.

They said a brick had been hurled through the window and a $49 portable typewriter was taken. Damage was estimated at $150.

It was the second window broken in the past week. Last week a brick was thrown through a window and a radio was stolen at the W. E. Jones furniture store, only three doors from the Orr company.

Dr. R. H. Frey reported yesterday that a thief had entered his office in the Farmers Bank building over the week-end and took $25 worth of old gold.

Entrance was gained by removing the screen from one of the windows after the burglar had crawled out on the roof from a hallway window, police said.

Meanwhile Miss Anita Stubelton, 89 Home avenue, reported the loss of her purse containing a $75 ring.

She said the purse was taken from the office of the Zediker Masonry company in the Walpark building while she stepped from the office to mail a letter.

Paul Banbury, Danville, reported the theft of his automobile yesterday from Wayne street.

BRITISH RUSH MORE PLANES TO AIR FRONT

Economy Forgotten In Haste To Meet German Foe's Aerial Threat.

Editor's Note: Following is the second of two dispatches dealing with organization of German and British air forces.

By BRYDON TAVES
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON — Great Britain has learned the costly lessons of the World war and is approaching the climax of history's greatest aerial struggle with a tightly organized and modern air force.

Whereas in 1916 the nation was unable to meet an urgent call for 120 more fighting planes to reinforce the Royal Flying Corps in France, it is today attempting to meet the demands of air chiefs for 10,000 or more planes a month.

In her do-or-die effort to challenge Germany's air supremacy, an effort upon which may hinge the outcome of the battle of Britain, the nation finally has discarded the economy which stunted the Royal Air Force's growth in the '20's and '30's.

The RAF is now a healthy, centralized organization working in close cooperation with the army and navy. With its seven commands all under one control, it is the simplest of the three organizations.

Other branches of the British commonwealth's air power include the fleet air arm—aircraft and personnel attached to naval vessels—which is responsible only to the admiralty, four foreign air forces subordinate to the air staff and the independent empire air forces.

The story of the RAF's birth, development and centralization goes back to an afternoon in late November, 1916, when Great Britain's war committee was studying anxiously a letter from the World war commander of British forces in France.

The letter was from Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, and he was demanding immediate reinforcement of the Royal Flying Corps in France by 20 fighting squadrons or 120 planes to meet a German threat to Allied air supremacy.

The new German Albatross and Halberstadt fighters were outperforming British planes. Adoption by Germany of a centralized system of control for her air force and new defenses foreshadowed aerial warfare such as the world had never dreamed of. But the British government was forced to tell Haig there was no possibility of meeting his request.

Twenty-three years later, as German bombs blasted the semi-defenseless Allied armies out of Norway, Britain again faced the same fundamental problem of supply.

Preparing to repel any invasion, Britain's defense chiefs are now demanding, not 120 planes, but a steady stream of 10,000 or more planes a month—as many as the factories of Britain, Canada and the United States can squeeze into their production schedules.

When U. S. Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., referred to the enormous cost involved in British plans to obtain 3,000 United States planes a month over and above existing contracts, he cited an axiom which finally has been put into practice here — "when dealing with air power, throw all ideas of economy out of the window."

Centralization of command in air operations, and an organization capable of supervising experimentation, production and distribution of the most powerful fighting machines and of maintaining vast numbers constantly available are the all-important factors in aerial warfare, according to British air experts.

And there have been suggestions that, had Britain's air chiefs had the ultimate power of decision in the RAF's peacetime policies, the battles for Norway and Flanders might have had a different outcome.

Officers Elected As Barbers Convene Here

noon today by fighters of the RAF."

After raids before dawn over southwest England, German airmen revisited their objectives during the morning and dropped at least nine high explosive bombs on two areas.

Four persons were slightly injured and some houses were damaged in one bombed district. In the other, the Germans were said to have found no target.

Screaming bombs—supposed to make air raids even more terrifying—apparently defeated their own purpose in a northwestern town.

"I was leaving my house by a side door to go to a shelter when I heard the screaming of the first bomb," a 65-year-old laborer related.

"Instinctively, I jumped back and closed the door behind me. There was a terrific explosion in the street and a few yards away and the door was blown out of my hands.

"If I had not heard the screaming noise I would have walked right into the bomb track."

Other raiders struck other points in southwest England as well as southwest and northeast England and Wales.

Morning raids over southwest England and Wales failed to cause any damage.

RECESSION DUE IN HEAT WAVE

Breezes Indicate Promised 'Mass of Cool Air' on Its Way to Ohio.

The number of deaths from the prolonged heat wave increased to 767, with heat deaths at 384 and drownings at 383. Ohio's total deaths due to heat prostrations stood at 38 today, with 46 more due to drownings.

Deaths yesterday, due to the heat, included John McWilliams, 53, and Edward L. Reed, 71, both of Columbus; Bert R. Mallory, 58, Mrs. Carmela Costello, 51, and Clarence Moore, 50, at Youngstown; William Moorehead, 71, Mrs. Marie Schmahl, 44, Miss Catherine Monogue, 60, Carl Beck, 57, and Miss Louise French, 71, all of Cincinnati; Joseph Cutroen, 57, Cleveland; Mrs. Mary I. Bell, 84, Barlow; and Oliver P. Allison, 74, Waterford.

Drownings in the state, also credited to the heat, were George Welch, 38, of East Liverpool; Raymond Wolf, 19, Cleveland; John Bath, 19, of Shawnee; and Thomas D. Perry, 19, of Marseilles, Wyandot county, who drowned in a stone quarry near his home.

One of the freak results of the high temperature was in Ashland county where a farmer reported that the heat in a hen house was so intense that when a brooding hen left her nest two of her eggs were hatched.

There was bad news today for hay fever sufferers from the state health department. Officials declared that because of the heavy rains last spring and the current heat wave that ragweed is growing more profusely throughout Ohio than for many years. The worst period for pollen drifting, officials said, would be from Aug. 5 to Sept. 10.

exhibition halls to accommodate the overflow of cattle, sheep, draft horse and hog entries which Secretary R. D. Hale described as the "most we have ever had."

Judging of exhibits will start at 9 a. m. Thursday. Horses and cattle are to be viewed by the judges before the grandstand. Poultry, sheep and hogs are to be judged in the exhibit halls.

A different program of grandstand attractions will be presented each day of the fair. Headlining Thursday's show are a circus and rodeo performance in the afternoon; the circus and rodeo and the Pine Ridge Revue in the evening combined with a sham battle by Ohio National guardsmen at night. The American Legion Drum corps will also perform on the Thursday night program.

Thursday afternoon will also mark the opening of a spectacular attraction which fair directors have booked for three days. It is a balloon ascension in which a girl is fired from a cannon attached to the gas bag.

The cannon is discharged at a height of 3,000 feet and the girl glides to earth in a parachute.

Different grandstand shows follow on succeeding days with the Boone County Jamboree winding up the program with performances Saturday afternoon and night.

SCORCHING HEAT BOON TO WHEAT CROP IN COUNTY

Grain Dealers And Farmers Hope It'll Contine to Make Up For Lost Time.

The heat wave may be getting monotonous to most of us, but the grain dealers in Mansfield and other Richland county towns hope it continues until the wheat harvest is over.

The scorching weather is speeding up the county harvest and helping to make the crop one of the best farmers in this section, have marketed in recent years.

With threshing and combining about one-third done in the county, Mansfield grain dealers said the wheat has less moisture content and is of better quality than any they have handled in several years. One dealer described it as the best he has ever seen. The intense heat is drying the grain rapidly in the shock, millers said.

Much of the grain has only 12 and a half per cent moisture content and tests from 59 to 61 pounds. Last year 14 per cent moisture content was considered good and grain tested 62 pounds or more.

Unless rain interferes with harvesting this week, threshing is expected to be at a peak in the county by Wednesday or Thursday. Most of the grain received so far has come from the southern part of the county and southern and western Ashland county, millers said.

Highest yield reported so far was on a farm on the Richland-Ashland county line where a field produced 44 bushels per acre. Yields from 30 to 35 bushels per acre have been reported on a number of farms.

New No. 1 wheat is selling for 72 cents a bushel, about six cents higher than at the same time last year.

Pageant Opens 'Cen-Quar' Celebration at Ashland

GOV. BRICKER CROWNS QUEEN OF FESTIVAL

Spirit of Community Praised By Ohio Chief Executive; 3,500 Attend Drama.

ASHLAND—The spirit of Ashland county moved across the stage of a colorful pageant at Ashland College stadium last night, as the crowning events in a 125 year old drama provided the theme for the celebration of the "Cen-Quar."

With the ancient trees on the campus whispering of the olden days, when Ashland county was young, and with blue skies overhead providing a perfect setting for the presentation, a gathering of an estimated 3,300 persons sat enthralled for two hours, as the mighty pageant unfolded.

Presiding as queen of the pageant reigned Miss Margaret Thornburg, descendant of the county's early pioneers, chosen for her beauty and the history she personified.

She was crowned with the honors of the day, by Ohio's governor, Hon. John W. Bricker, who accepted the invitation of the city of Ashland, to come here for the signal occasion in the 125th anniversary celebration of the city of Ashland.

Introduced by Mayor Howard S. Lutz, Governor Bricker praised the community for its progress, and declared that such spirit is the backbone of our American democratic form of government.

"As long as we have the spirit of representative government and community spirit like this, we can enjoy the thrill of having 125 years of history roll before us," he declared as he presented the queen with her crown.

The queen, accepting in the midst of her retinue of attendants, all descendants of the county's earliest pioneers, was in turn greeted by the representatives of the county's townships, after which the colorful pageant began.

Every important phase in the history of the city and of Ashland county, from the time that the first white man visited this territory was unfolded skillfully by the cast in the two hour program.

"The first white man ever to reach Ashland county" walked across the stage with his Indian escort, after which "Major Rogers en route to the shores of Lake Erie in 1755 travelled with his party through this region."

Then followed Col. William Crawford and his ill-fated party, which later was to be burned at the stake at Upper Sandusky.

As the pageant unfolded, the Indian's allegiance to the British in the war of 1812 constituted a real menace to the scattered settlers in the county, and many of them took refuge in the blockhouse at Jeromesville. Captain Douglas, unsuccessful in his attempts to remove the tribe from Greentown, demanded that Rev. James Copus accompany him on a second journey. The Indians, having confidence in him, agreed to leave on condition that Greentown and their property should be respected.

Only a few miles on their way, they looked back to see the rising smoke from their blazing home, for disregarding Copus' pledge, the soldiers had fired the village.

"Several killings" followed and climaxed the tragic massacre of Rev. Copus and three of the soldiers who had been detailed to protect him and his family.

"On July 28, 1815 was the day William Montgomery laid out the 41 lots in what was then Richland county, and called it Uniontown. This was the beginning of Ashland and settlement grew apace. "The first store was erected in 1817 by Joseph Sheets and his son, William Sheets was the first white child born in Ashland."

In 1820, during one of his many journeys in this section, John Chapman, well known as Johnny Appleseed stayed on the Carter-Springer farm where he planted probably the largest orchard in this part of the state. His kindness made a deep impression on all who knew him.

Then was shown the founding of Ashland Academy, where Lorin Andrews the first Ohioan to enlist in the Union armies was at one time a principal.

The affects of the Fugitive Slave law, and how the Underground Railroad sprang up here to help run-away slaves was shown, and then was depicted how in the Civil war, Ashland helped the cause of the Union by formation of two companies.

The founding of the co-educational institution, Ashland College was shown, after which was depicited Ashland's second contribution to the Union cause, by forming companies for services in the Spanish-American war.

In the epilogue, "Ashland the Past," was shown, after which "Ashland the Present" was staged, with fraternal, social, civic, agricultural and industrial organizations pledging their continued support for the Ashland of the future.

Sunday, at Brookside park was dedicated the Memorial Cen-Quar grove of 125 trees, one for each of the years in the history of the city. James Stevenson, forest ranger at Mohican State park was the main speaker.

Sunday evening, in the high school auditorium, Dr. Ralph Diffendorfer, formerly of Hayesville, and now of New York, delivered the sermon at the Union church services, called especially for the celebration.

Monday morning, several hundred attended the Homecomers meeting, held in the Ashland Opera House.

For today there was scheduled the opening of the Hobby fair at the high school, under the auspices of the Rotary club.

The Rotary Cen-Quar luncheon was scheduled at noon by the Rotary at the Country club, and at 2:30 there was scheduled the dedication of the Thornburg Entomology museum, given to the school by Paul Thornburg.

The second presentation of the pageant is to be made this evening.

Wednesday, a historical parade will be featured, and a program at Brookside park will follow.

heavy air battle ensued in which 12 British spitfires and three British Hurricanes as well as three of our own aircraft were brought down.

"In the course of armed reconnaissance over the English channel and the east coast of England," the communique said, "We succeeded in sinking one cruiser of about 10,000 tons and a merchant ship of 1,000 tons, as well as badly damaging another British merchantman."

In a separate announcement, the high command charged that British planes yesterday bombed a military hospital in northwestern Germany "damaging parts of the building with bomb splinters."

Italian Bombers Attack Convoy

ROME—(INS)—A heavy Italian bombing attack on a British convoy in the Mediterranean in which severe damage was inflicted and advances in East Africa were announced today in the Italian military bulletin.

"One of the enemy pursuit planes," the bulletin said, "was brought down in an air combat and one Italian bomber did not return to its base.

"In East Africa our occupation of Kurmuk was extended and an enemy supply column was captured. Aden (British naval base in Arabia) was bombed and one ship was hit."

Britain Aroused By Jap Actions

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax declared before the House of Lords today, "It is hardly necessary to state that there is no foundation whatsoever" for the allegation by Japan of a spy networks in Japan.

LONDON—(U.P.)—Britain has informed Japan that she takes a "serious view" of the arrest of 11 British subjects, one of whom plunged to death from a Japanese police station while being questioned, it was learned today.

Authoritative quarters said that yesterday British Ambassador Sir Robert Craigie informed Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka of the British attitude and said that "news of the arrests would inevitably be regarded as having political implications quite apart from any technical charges against those arrested."

Spurred by newspaper demands that Britain reopen the Burma supply route to China or arrest prominent Japanese residents of London, the cabinet met to consider an official report from Craigie on the arrests in Japan.

Canada Increasing Home Defenses

OTTAWA, Ont.—(INS)—Within a year, Canada will have a home defense army of about 300,000 men trained under the new compulsory mobilization bill, Defense Minister Leighton Ralston assured the Dominion today.

The men will be called up for 30 days camp training beginning October at the rate of about 30,000 a month. Ralston announced during the continuing parliamentary debate on Canada's war effort. Although even this short period of training threatens serious disruption of Canada's normal life, "difficulties cannot be allowed to obscure the goal to be reached," the defense minister asserted.

It was announced in parliament for the first time that the Canadian ship Restigouche had saved 700 German and Italian internees and several crew members from the Arandora Star which was sunk off the Irish coast while carrying interned enemy aliens to Canada.

FORD, 77 TODAY, BARES PLANS FOR POWERFUL PLANE MOTOR

(By International News Service)

DEARBORN, Mich.—Still active and looking to the future at a time in life when most men are living in their past, Henry Ford today celebrated his 77th birthday with the announcement his company will soon produce a new 1,500 horsepower airplane motor.

The new engine, the motor magnate revealed, will be of lightweight, 60 degree V type design with 12 liquid cooled cylinders and is expected to be the most powerful ever built for airplane use.

"We have prints drawn and are ready to put the engine into production," Ford announced. "We will use an alloy metal to keep down weight and still maintain strength and durability.

"The plans for this new motor were partially drawn before the English Rolls Royce engine designs were submitted to us. It is similar to the Rolls motor in some respects but more closely resembles the 12-cylinder engine we now use in the Zephyr car, but is, of necessity, more than ten times as powerful.

"We will produce the motor shortly and it will find its field in the United States. We plan no plane design on which to mount the engine, but we believe it is the most powerful yet built for airplane use."

Questioned on reports that the Ford Motor company planned to build the motor and store it for future use by plane designers or the government, Ford said:

"We do not store anything. These motors will be built for a purpose.

"If one plans to store anything of value it immediately loses part of its value. The value of an engine is in its use. Who knows but what someone else might build a more powerful motor. Ours, if stored, would then become obsolete, and its worth lost."

Built on production, the new airplane motor is expected to be considerably cheaper than similar high-horsepower engines.

"We can build this motor on our present assembly lines with little difficulty and very cheaply," Ford declared.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, JULY 30, 1940.

None too early—but rather difficult—to think about laying in next winter's coal supply.

It appears that even New Dealers haven't hardened themselves to the idea of a third term for vice president.

"When food of all kinds is placed on the table, the child instinctively picks what is best for it"—which seems to bring confections back into the approved list.

Marion To Have Parking Meters

STUDY of Marion's experience in reaching a decision to install parking meters, considering the advantages of various types and threshing out the matter of unit costs, may be of value to Mansfield officials who will probably soon be faced by similar problems.

Marion's decision was to make experimental installation of 100 meters, automatic in operation, with stainless steel internal mechanism, at a cost of $56.50 each.

It was decided that meters should be adjusted to receiving a nickel for an hour's parking privilege, instead of allowing 12-minutes parking for one cent, as is also possible.

The matter of comparative costs of competitive meters was fully considered by Marion officials, as well as merits claimed for automatic and manual types, also the difference in cost when bought in 100 lots and in larger quantities.

With much information now available regarding parking meters, covering kinds that are in successful operation elsewhere and reasonable cost per unit, Mansfield officials should be able to avoid many of the difficulties encountered in other cities which experimented with meters before they had reached their present stage of mechanical excellence and durability.

The price feature has also become of such general public record that this would seem to be no more than a matter of becoming assured that Mansfield pays no more than the lowest price quoted to other cities buying like quality in comparable quantity.

Nazis In South America

THE NAZI penetration of South America is a thing to be watched and reckoned with. The Nazi idea, evidently, is to get such firm control by methods observed only faintly if at all by the countries concerned that when the Nazi regime has conquered Europe, it will have free economic rein over the resources of this southern world. Fortunately some of these countries are now alive to the danger and have begun to take measures to preserve their own safety and financial grip. Chile, notably, is now coming into open antagonism to the fifth column.

Colombia has recently turned all domestic airlines over to a national company and has retired all German pilots and technical personnel. Pan-American Airways instructors have taken over the operation. It seems to have been quite time this was done. Out of 800 employes, something like 200 were German.

The trouble in some countries with this kind of change is that the German airlines have offered cheaper transportation rates. In South America, with its inaccessible mountains and jungles, air travel is the most important means of getting from place to place.

It is not necessary to become jittery about these things. Faced with clear realization of the facts, they can be counteracted. But the immense pattern of the German plan must be taken into account.

Leave of Absence for Trainees

CONSIDERATION of the "draft bill" sensibly includes discussion of what will happen after a man finishes the prescribed period of service. A senate military committee working on the bill agrees that it should be made unfair labor practice for an employer in interstate commerce to refuse to rehire, at the end of their service, youths taken from their jobs for a year by the government.

No doubt many young men will be called who have never had jobs. It is hoped that, after a year of training, they will be better prepared to obtain work than they were before they had it. But for the men already launched on life careers, it would be unfair to deprive them of their jobs because they have been absent on government service.

Federal law can take care only of those whose employers are engaged in interstate commerce. State governments will have to look out for the others, or encourage employers to do so, as, in fact, many have already planned to do.

'Good Old Days' Not So Good

THE NEW YORK TIMES is inspired, by statements of Japanese fascists that they want to go back to the selfless days of the Samurai, to remind lovers of the past that if they get those good old days they must take them as they come.

If Japan goes back to the Samurai, Germany to the period of free Germanic tribes at the beginning of the Christian era, and Ireland to the pre-Norman tribal system, they must take along with these things famine, unchecked epidemics, high death rates, infant mortality, illiteracy, a sixteen-hour working day for the peasant, the kitchen stove and washboard for women and so on and on.

One thing the writer forgot—how singularly modern are the kitchen stove and the washboard of corrugated metal. Hardly a century ago fireplace cooking was the rule—bending over the pothooks and hangers suspended on the fireplace crane. As for washing, most of the women in the world still do it out-of-doors.

The days of the Found— Fathers were no doubt interesting. But do you really want to kill a steer at first snowfall, hang the carcass at the back door and go out and hack a piece off now and again when you need meat?

A survey of public opinion finds little sentiment in the nation for greater regulation of business in the interests of reform. But business shouldn't misread that as a mandate to kick out past reforms.

Some folks only claim to individuality is in their fingerprints.

Defending the third term idea will also cost money.

It is the despair, suffering and grief
Of tired, weary old folks back home
When death does not favor with relief

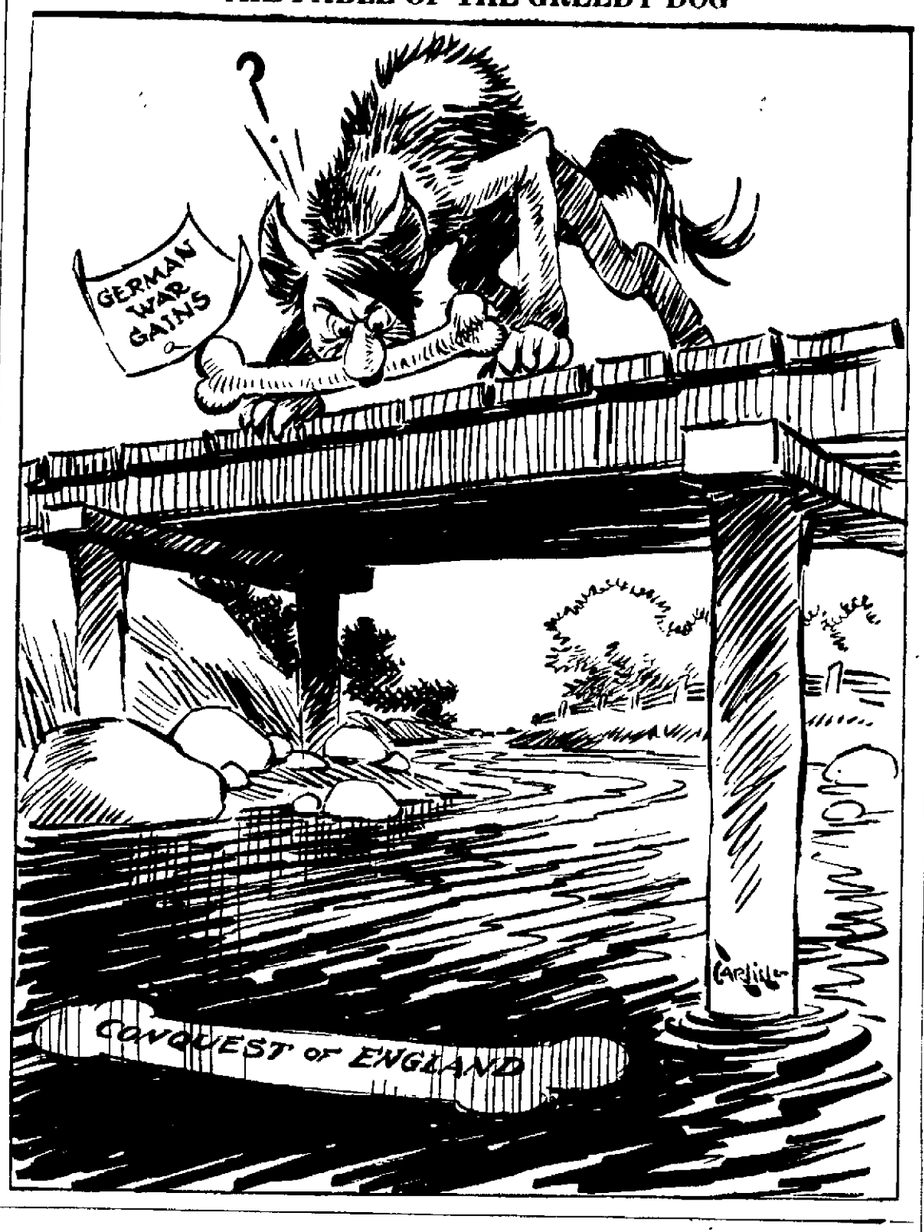
THE FABLE OF THE GREEDY DOG



Bosses Relieved By Farley's Exit

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

HARRY HOPKINS and the other members of his third-term managerial committee at the Chicago convention were quite convincing in their fashion of urging James A. Farley to continue his Democratic national chairmanship, but it's very generally believed by politicians that they were pretty sure he wouldn't do it, or maybe they would have been a bit more careful about asking him to.

FARLEY

Of course it was first-rate policy for them to pretend they were exceedingly anxious to keep him, and inasmuch as they were practically certain he was going to retire, in order to go into the baseball business, there was no reason for them to refrain from doing so.

However, he had been altogether too obvious an anti-third termer to go down well with the "draft Roosevelt" leaders, and everybody who's at all familiar with the situation has known that they were overjoyed at the news that he was about to quit voluntarily. How President Roosevelt himself felt about it wasn't revealed, but there wasn't much doubt as to the views of most of the leading boosters for his renomination.

As a matter of fact, vehement New Dealers never have regarded Farley as outstandingly devoted to their philosophy. Still, he wasn't opposed to it. He simply was interested in the welfare of the party bearing the Democratic label, and took the New Deal indifferently—not as an "anti" like some of the old-line Democrats in congress and elsewhere.

And the New Dealers, such as Commerce Secretary Hopkins, Interior Secretary Ickes and others, did recognize him as an excellent party manager. So they thought highly of him as their national committee's chairman and had no objection to him in the cabinet.

Now It's Different.

But that was before the third-term issue became acute and Jim took the anti side of it.

By the Chicago convention's opening date they were classing him with Vice President Garner. They resented his presidential candidacy in part because it aimed at foreclosure against Roosevelt, and furthermore, they opposed the idea of his nomination anyway, on the ground that he isn't a hearty New Dealer — just doesn't care, one way or the other, for anything except the Democratic party label.

They felt also that, in the event of Roosevelt's renomination and acceptance, Jim had ceased to be a suitable committee chairman to manage F. D.'s campaign.

Yet getting rid of him, if he'd shown an inclination to hang onto his post, promised to involve the meanest kind of a situation.

Just at that juncture the New Dealers' whole difficulty was solved for them by the revelation that Jim (presumably realizing that he stood no real chance of landing the presidential nomination) was about to abandon politics altogether, become a baseball magnate, and make some money, his chairmanship and cabinet job not having been a bit profitable to him.

Sounds Rather Phoney.

Thereupon Harry Hopkins and his leading associates called on him on the convention's eve to express the deepest regret at his prospective retirement and to ask him to reconsider it and remain at the head of the national committee.

In the circumstances, cynical practical politicians are saying, the sincereity of these protestations sounds to them mighty doubtful.

All this isn't to say that Jim hasn't plenty of friends who'll genuinely regret this exit from the political scene. He has lots of them all over the country—many of them probably New Dealers. Nevertheless he's been an unmitigated embarrassment to the third term movement's managing group and political skeptics find it hard to believe that they're otherwise than vastly tickled to see him remove himself so peacefully — though doubtless they wish him well in baseball.

Health and Diet

Precautions For Children In Camp.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT IS OFTEN remembered that the modern habit of sending boys and girls to camp in large groups would probably not have been feasible or advisable fifty years ago. The object of camp life is primarily health. Modern sanitation and preventive medicine have made such gatherings really safe from the health viewpoint. We wonder why nobody thought of them in our grandfather's time, but in our grandfather's time, camping concentrations would have been hazardous, not healthy.

The greatest single danger that has been eliminated is typhoid fever. The experience of American troops in camp concentrations during the Spanish-American war with the frightful incidence of typhoid followed by the experience of the British army in the Boer war in preventing it by individual inoculation showed the way to safety from this ancient curse, and that was only forty years ago. Every child that goes to camp should have a preventive typhoid inoculation. It's true it often spoils several days of vacation with a slight fever or sore arm, but it can be done long before camp starts. The same may be said of diphtheria prevention.

Safe Water.

The nature of the water supply will be investigated by an experienced camp director. If the camp secures its water supply from a city or village reservoir that is subject to frequent inspection all well and good. Some camps even their own water supply and can police it. If there is any question about the water supply the question is done.

The disposal of sewage, if trunk line sewers are not available, can be accomplished by septic tanks. Showers, regular bath equipment at camps are more sanitary than tubs.

Milk supply must also be investigated. Most of the diseases of children in the summer forty years ago were from milk. It sounds fine to say a camp has its own dairy herd, but unless this is carefully inspected it is a source of danger. Milk should never be delivered to camp in bulk—in cans. Nothing larger than quart bottles.

The more separation of campers' sleeping quarters the better. When soldiers were herded in large barracks, during the last World war, contagious diseases broke out. When they were put in smaller sleeping quarters or tents this was reduced.

Physically Fit Campers.

The preliminary physical examination to see whether the camper is fit for all the strenuous activities of camp is also a protection.

One of the great benefits of camp life is to correct capricious appetites. The emphasis on vegetables, milk, fruits and the elimination of an overabundance of sweets makes for the building of strong, hard bodies and the loss of softness.

Another good effect of camp in many cases is to get the child away from its dependent home atmosphere and put it on its own. Those possessive parents who spend their vacation near the camp so they can "see how the child is getting along," are spoiling the good effect of camping as much as those who bootleg candy and cake to their darlings.

Isolationists Plan Filibuster To Block Compulsory Draft

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Senator Wheeler's prediction that the compulsory training bill faces a "rocky road in the senate" tells only half the story.

What Wheeler didn't disclose was that he and the other isolationists are secretly prepared to wage a filibuster to prevent passage of a draft act. They believe that with an election in the offing the threat of a knock-down legislative battle will frighten the politicos and make them drop the bill until after November.

Then, they figure, it will be too late to do anything until next spring, by which time they are confident developments will show that such a drastic step is not needed.

This is a tremendous gamble, of course, with the nation's security as the stake. But that doesn't faze Wheeler and his isolationist friends. They have been gambling like this for months, always guessing wrong but still insisting they are right.

They derided Roosevelt's warning that a European war was imminent and when war did break, they pooh-poohed it as a "phoney" conflict. They fought his repeal of the arms embargo and when finally defeated, have fought every move to aid first the French and now the British.

Because of overwhelming public sentiment the Wheeler bloc has trod a wary course on the various rearmament measures. But they are going to take off the wraps on the compulsory draft bill and they may be able to block it.

Conscientious Objectors.

CONGRESSIONAL committee hearings in the Burke-Wadsworth bill for peacetime conscription have brought sharp division of opinion.

Appearing before the senate military affairs committee, Peace Leader Frederick J. Libby declared the bill "would fill our jails and prisons, not only with young men but with their pastors and with church leaders."

Retorted war veteran Senator Sherman Minton of Indiana, "Then we'll build more prisons."

Note—The bill now contains modifications exempting conscientious objectors. Responsible for them were Harold Evans, E. Raymond Wilson, and Paul French, all members of the Society of Friends (Quakers).

Factory Door Campaign.

WENDELL WILLKIE plans to use the same dynamic tactics in his election campaign as those which won him the GOP nomination. In addition to touring the country by train, auto and plane, he also has up his sleeve some novel vote-wooing methods.

One is what he calls "factory door" meetings: snappy 15-minute gatherings during lunch periods at large industrial plants, at which he will make a short talk and then hold a question-and-answer session with the workers. On the list for such unique rallies are Detroit auto plants, steel mills in Ohio and Pennsylvania, coal mines and several other mass production industries.

"I want to go straight to the factory door," Willkie told his campaign advisers. "I want to carry my message straight to the workshops of labor as well as from the usual campaign platforms."

Note—GOP chiefs will not unlimber their big campaign howitzers until after Labor Day. Willkie will formally launch the campaign with a Labor Day address at a place yet to be picked, and from that moment on the country will witness one of the hottest and most intensive campaigns in history.

Capital Chaff.

ENGINEERS figure that it takes a block of ice 105 feet square and towering as high as the Washington Monument (555 feet) to cool the Capitol buildings in the summer 'cooling season" of 170 days, from mid-May to the end of October. . . . This government is issuing visas for admission of foreigners from all parts of the world at the rate of 2500 to 3000 a day. Those coming on immigration visas, under quota restrictions, pay a $10 fee. But most come on visitors' visas which do not cost Canadians, Cubans, and Mexicans anything, but cost $2 for British citizens.

Nazi Air Routes.

WHILE the world's attention is fastened on Havana, the Germans are making strides with a type of penetration not on the agenda of that conference—the extension of German airlines in South America.

Through the Nazi air holding company, Lufthansa, subsidies are being handed out liberally to domestic companies under German control. Most aggressive is the German subsidiary in Ecuador, SEDTA, whose operators ingratiate themselves by the well known junket method. That is, they give free rides all around the country to Ecuadorean government officials.

This infiltration is a threat to U. S. influence, but more dangerous still, it gives the Germans connecting airlines which run all the way from the coast of Brazil through Bolivia, Peru, Ecuador, and Colombia to within striking distance of the Panama Canal.

Now, however, the Civil Aeronautics Authority and State Department have worked out a plan to combat the German influence by extending the existing U. S. airline in Ecuador with post office subsidies. The line is Panagra, subsidiary of Pan American Airways.

A new Ecuadorean company is to be set up over Panagra, and Ecuador will be offered option to buy up to 51 per cent of the stock. This would give them a controlling interest whenever they could put up the money.

In the meantime, the line will be U. S. dominated, but with Ecuadorean pilots and crews, and every kind of training and improvement service offered for the airline expansion of the country. This would require a heavy investment of U. S. Capital, and Ecuador, in return, would be expected to rid herself of the German company.

This plan, however, exists only on paper, and while it is being deliberated the Germans are showing every sign of spending fresh money, in this and in other countries of South America.

Wallace's Plan.

UNLIKE Vice President Jack Garner, who did no campaigning in either 1932 or 1936, Henry Wallace will be very active in this year's ballot battle.

Not only will he thoroughly canvass the Midwest, but he will tour the South and make speeches in some of the big Eastern industrial centers. Under plans tentatively formulated, Wallace will be on the hustings almost continuously after he resigns as Secretary of Agriculture and makes his speech accepting the vice presidential nomination, set for Aug. 23.

Inner circle discussion of a successor in the Agriculture Department centers around three men—Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt; Representative Marvin Jones, Texas chairman of the House Agriculture Committee; and Ed O'Neil, president of the Farm Bureau Federation, who at various times has been at odds with Wallace on farm policies.

Principal argument being pressed for McNutt is his magnanimous withdrawal in Wallace's favor at the Chicago convention. This sportsmanship made a big hit with Roosevelt, who called McNutt up at 2 a. m. and thanked him for being "a gallant and loyal soldier."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — We were introduced the other night to a young woman who said she led a dull life and for goodness sake she wished something would happen to change the humdrum tenor of her days. Simply stifling with ennui, she was and she confessed that she almost became bitter when she read of other people finding color and excitement in their lives.

There were many other people present, for it was an after-the-ater party, and during the evening she let drop a reference to "my first husband." She looked about twenty-five. "Yes," she said, "he was a California business man and a fine fellow, but somehow we couldn't hit it off, and after the divorce I went down into Mexico on a party and fell in love with an Arizonian who owned a big ranch down there. Shortly after that we got married, and a famous artist was best man."

"And are you still married to this rancher?" we inquired of this pretty prisoner of ennui.

"No," she replied. "We simply didn't get along together, and after the divorce I went down to Florida on a vacation and here I am in New York. I used to live here, but that was before my parents took me to China."

We didn't ask her anything more. We were afraid she had found Shanghai so dull that we simply couldn't stand it.

For a number of years now the beau ideal of detective novel titles has been The Thin Man. There is a title that has everything. It has color. It has a zest. It is something you love to roll around on your tongue. Titles have become so important, from a merchandising point of view, that only in rare instances do editors and publishers give authors final say on titles of their books. As a matter of fact, most writers are poor selectors of titles.

We have a case in point right here in New York—that of a long, lanky, shadow-thin North Carolinian known to his intimates as Andy Anderson.

Mr Anderson has written a murder mystery, and it is soon to come off the press. The working title of this book was "Murder Mountain," because a mountain in N. C. is the locale of the story. But one day his publishers turned up with a brand new title. I think it is the best murder mystery title I ever heard. See what you think. It's "Kill One, Kill Two."

Your old friend the Professor, Kay Kyser, relays this story of the two Jewish boys who were lunching at a 46th street delicatessen.

"A fine pal you are, Jake."

"What's troubling you, Moe?"

"Here we are having lunch together. We've had lunch together every day for five years. And not once, not once mind you, have you asked me how business was. Aren't you my friend? Dunt you care?"

"Moe," cried Jake, apologetically, "I just didn't think. Of course I'm your friend. Tell me how's business?"

"Dunt ask," moaned Jake, throwing up his arms in despair.

A Farmer's Diary

'Neath Harvest Moon

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WE SHOCKED our wheat by the light of the harvest moon. It was dead ripe. The heads, above the stiffened straws, bent downward. I knew the grain would shatter out, if handled much, so decided to wait until evening when it was cooler and the dew would help protect the crop from shattering. The entire family turned out, after supper, to help. The moon did not come up for an hour after dusk. By the time its first bright edge showed above a long thin cloud our work was one fourth done. We stood two sheaves together to start the shock, then, quickly with aid of many hands, it grew to twelve or more. I finished it by breaking the straw above the band on two last sheaves and placed them on top at right angles, to keep the shock together and protect it from rain and dew.

We felt the dampness on our shoes and ankles as we worked. A balmy south wind blew, and brought a cool touch to our warm, moist faces. The dusky harvest field, with its rows of prone scattered sheaves extending to the wall of uncut wheat — for the binder did not finish in one day — was not without romance. My wife and I stood at a corner near a finished shock and listened to the children's voices across the stubble.

The two smallest sons had laid down with a blanket, between two shocks, and gone to sleep. The other two children, tired of work, chased each other in an impromptu game. A yellow kitten, scouting for birds or rabbits, rubbed purring against my legs.

"Are you tired?" I asked my companion.

She agreed that she was—tired and hot. We sat down for a little on two bundles of wheat and watched the moon. "Do you remember when . . ." we asked each other, and laughed together.

"I can't remember when we were younger and more romantic, that dewberry briers used to tear at our ankles so," I said, rubbing a scratched bare shin.

"I can," said she. "You've no idea how many pairs of good silk stockings those briers ruined, in days gone by."

When we quit at last and went up to the house, misty silver moonlight still slept on the dewy valley floor. The wheat was in the shock. We yawned wearily as we went to hunt the shin lotion. The clock struck midnight.

Stars Select Smart Attire For Day, Evening

With jewels on her hose! Ann Miller, talented dancer with raven-wing hair, wears some novelty evening hosiery with jewelled flowers high-lighting her trim ankles.

For Town or Country: Carole Lombard goes handsomely costumed in this individual-looking black suit of light-weight wool. Jacket is smartly detailed with shepherd pockets, self-covered buttons, stark white collar squared-off and deftly styled in an ecclesiastical manner. Her dramatic black straw hat is veiled, and defined by a jeweled pin to match the one worn at the waist. White gloves and alligator accessories complete the ensemble.

Slim Silhouette Arriving With New Fall Coats, Suits

WOMEN are certainly contrary creatures. While they are busily packing a wardrobe of coolest sheers for their summer vacation, and while they make last minute trips to town to select a pair of sale shoes to carry them through the summer, and buy a white cartwheel to lend alluring shadows when the sun is high they are also casting longing glances at the winter coats and suits which are just beginning to arrive in the shops.

No, it isn't a medicine man or a charmingly feminine model in that window on Main street where all your friends are standing and staring—it's just a showing of what madam will be wearing this winter.

Well, it's bound to be a blow to many of you but last season's coat won't do this year. No, ma'm. The slim silhouette which Paris had tried to introduce for several seasons has now come into its own paradoxically enough, when Paris is no more the leading fashion center of the world.

Smoother fabrics, slecker outlines and more luxurious fur trimmings all create a slimmer look. At least the designers have had an inspiration. You remember when we all wore a fitted or a boxed coat, and everybody looked just like everybody else? Well no more. Coats are now being designed for types.

Probably the most outstanding treatment for the coming fall and winter season is the tuxedo style. Other ideas that look like a coming hit are the side-tie and the fur border around the hemline. Most of you probably recall that this fashion had a high peak of popularity in the '20's, but the side-tie has never really been popular, although it has appeared in some of the smartest lines from time to time.

Panels making the complete skirt of cloth coats will be a dramatic touch for this season, and capelets in beaver and silver fox create a charming picture. Vestees are a new touch that give the coat a costume effect.

And for collars. They don't just lay down around your neck anymore. No indeed! They stand up, they are rippled, draped and folded to flatter the face of youngster or grandma.

REVEAL WEDDING

Next time try some of those stunning American-tanned smooth leathers . . . the kind you call "kid" gloves. They're soft and smooth as butter and bright colors are gorgeous in them. And they fit in beautifully with the fashion for smoother surfaced fabrics.

AUGUST RIVALS JUNE AS WEDDING MONTH

Several Ceremonies of Social Importance Scheduled In, Out of City During Next 30 Days; Many Name Dates.

ALTHOUGH prognostications are not in our line, we feel perfectly safe in estimating that August will run second only to June in the parade of weddings during 1940. June, because of the rainy and unseasonable weather, did not record quite as many marriages as had been expected, and the holiday nuptials have been fewer this year than in seasons past, so perhaps Cupid has done a bit of practicing on the archery court this summer, shooting out his darts willy-nilly and piercing quite a few hearts.

Starting the parade is the marriage of Miss Judy Bean and Harry Cave Conklin. This wedding, of which we heard only the other day, will take place Thursday at Granville, the bride's home. Following the 6:30 p. m. ceremony which will be attended by Mr. Conklin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Conklin, and other relatives of this city, the couple will go on their wedding trip, returning to Cleveland to make their home.

Another Aug. 1 wedding is that of Miss Stella Disanze to Donald A. Quinn, Salem. The ceremony will be performed at St. Peter's Catholic church.

Friday is the day chosen by Miss Marjorie Gale for her marriage to Robert Hassinger. The informal ceremony will be read at 7:30 p. m. at the First Christian church with Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger officiating. Miss Gale was feted at a recent linen shower by Mrs. E. C. Setterfield, 277 West Dickson avenue and Miss Mary Alice Wentz.

Excitement runs high in the city with the number of socially important weddings taking place here and elsewhere. Aug. 3 was the date Miss Carolyn Finefrock selected for her marriage to Rupert F. Beckstett. The ceremony will be solemnized at St. Luke's Lutheran church at 8 p. m. with a reception at the Westbrook Country club to follow.

Name First Sunday.

The first Sunday of next month will witness two marriages of general interest in this vicinity as Miss Marie Ellen Underhill, Lucas, formerly of Mansfield becomes the bride of Joseph Schuff at 2:30 p. m. before the altar of the St. Paul Lutheran church. A home ceremony will be read Aug. 4 for Miss Bertha Sauder and her fiance, Ferol Miller.

Nimble Fingers Make Smart Knit Costumes

Midsummer is just about the laziest time of the whole year, and most people spend the long sunny days in lolling around on beaches and club porches. But if you have nimble fingers, now is the time to use your leisure moments to start knitting something smart for your fall wardrobe.

Even if you are just a beginner with the needles, with a little tutoring you ought to be able to whip up a sweater in time for cool weather.

Crocheted and knitted sweaters will be worn for evening as well as sports, and hand-made dresses will be a chic adjunct to hats are furs when you go back to town.

The crocheted sweater worn by Maureen O'Hara is for evening. It is perfect for dining out and informal night clubbing. It is in a lovely canary yellow shade that will set off a suntan to perfection. With this is worn a floor-length skirt of inch black velvet. Bright red flowers, almost fish-scaled in design, add another gay note of color.

Adele Pearce has chosen a short fur sweater for sports wear. It can be worn for golfing with slacks or under a coat for spectator sports. It is made of fine wool with a front opening and long sleeves. The novelty buttons are made of natural wood. The sweater in the picture is in the shade of ripe wheat and the slacks are dark brown. Any bright autumn colors would be equally appropriate, however, if you're planning to knit one yourself, so it is just a matter of picking your favorite shade, and working out a good color combination with your skirt or slacks.

Ann Sheridan is modeling a hand-knit dress in a warm shade of rust. It has a shallow square collar and scalloped front closing which is carried out in the same treatment on the edging of the pocket flaps and on the brief sleeves. The buttons are made of wood and the belt is knitted with a leather buckle and leather straps at the front.
